COURT CLERK'S FEES A PUZZLE FOR GRAND JURY

Question Is Whether They or All Bonds He Fixed Are Illegal.

HIS AUTHORITY DOUBTED

Law Not Clear on His Power to Take Oath of Bondsmen.

FEES EQUAL HIS SALARY

One Professional Bondsman Says He Paid as High as $20 a Day.

The grand jury is wrestling with a knotty legal problem, involving the perquisites accruing to Owen J. Macaulay, clerk of the City Hall Police Court, in fees he accepts in making out bonds.

The Missouri Statutes clearly state that a salaried official accepting fees "under color of his office" is guilty of misdemeanor. But there is a question as to whether Macaulay had the power of notary public necessary to swear bondsmen—whether his power to swear witnesses in the court extends so far. If he has not this authority, and is acting under erroneous instructions in making the bonds, then there is doubt as to whether he can be punished under the statute.

The grand jury's investigation has thus raised the interesting question as to whether the bonds issued in the court for the past four years have been illegal and worthless.

Macaulay's salary is $1200 a year. He says that he makes about 100 bonds a month. To fee he charges is usually $1 often more, and rarely 50 cents. On this basis his revenue from fees at least equals his salary. Professional bondsmen say the number of bonds is much greater than 100 a month. One says he has paid Macaulay as much as $20 in a day, when signing bonds after a raid on a crap game or a house in the Bed Lands.

Schwacker Complained.

The investigation by the grand jury is due to the complain of Chris Schawacker, a professional bondsman, when Macaulay refused to accept as surety. The refusal was due to a personal difference between the two men. Schawacker is one of the men summoned before the grand jury, with many other bondsmen and several lawyers, who practice law in police courts. Another of the bondsmen was Samuel Weisman of 204 North Fourteenth street. He said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday:

"I've been signing bonds in that court for a little more than two years, and have probably signed more of them than any other one man. Sometimes I've paid Macaulay as much as $20 in a day, and once I paid him $15 for fixing up one little thing for me.

"The case was the of Grace Gazzolo and John Dix, who were arrested with another man, charged with disturbing the peace. I bear the Saturday night after I signed their bonds that Dix was about to leave town, and learned thrtaaihnwe c cmfwe....trw fbgkb what train he was going on. There was just time to send my brother Joe to the Union Station to head him off. He caught Dix just as he was going through the gate and prevented him from going. If he hadn't, I'd have been for a $200 forfeiture.

"Well, the people at Havlin's, where Dix worked, wouldn't go security for him, and we decided to surrender him on his bond. Joe heard Macaulay was down at Faust's and took Dix down there. Macaulay was eating and drinking with some men. He agreed to go to the Four Courts with Joe and identify Dix, so he could be surrendered. I was at the Four Courts. I paid Macaulay $15 for his trouble. He didn't demand it, but I knew it was up to me to pay.

Macaulay said, when asked about this by a Post-Dispath reporter, that he had accepted only $5 from Weisman in connection with the Dix case, and that this was in payment for his time and trouble in leaving Faust's to identify Dix. He did not accept anything, he said, in connection with the setting aside of the bond forfeiture.

"It is not a part of my duties to swear bondsmen or to make out bonds," Macauley said. "Whenever I do this. I am doing something outside my province, which would be the duty of an attorney or a notary if I didn't do it, and which cost the person giving bond $5 or $10.

"I therefore charge a fee for my services. I have a perfect right to do so, attorneys have assured me. Sometimes that fee is 50 cents, but usually it is $1. Sometimes it is more. It is according to what people want to pay me. I simply tell them it is not a part of my duty, but that I am willing to accommodate them. It is reasonable that they should expect to pay for service of that sort.

"The costs of court proceedings and fines are paid to the City Treasurer, and our books on that point are open to inspection at any time. I believe there can be no question as to their accuracy. We have devised an elaborate system of checking to prevent any error or dishonesty.

ACCUSED BY CHOIR SINGER.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 21.—The Federal grand jury has returned an indictment against Dr. A. E. Campbell of Clinton, alleging that he mailed an objectionable letter to Mrs. Maud Gonnell, a member of the Presbyterian Church choir, which resulted in her resignation from that organization.

Dr. Campbell protests innocence.

Found Roommate Dead.

Thomas Donoghue, 37 years old, was found dead in bed at 708 O'Fallon street, at 6 a. m., Monday. The discovery was made by George Manke, Donoghue's roommate. The body was sent to the morgue. Donoghue had been in the City Hospital twice within the last year, the police say. He was unmarried. He was employed as a carpenter's helper by Edward Benger of 706 North Tenth street. He is supposed to be survived by a brother and sister who live in Chicago.

NEW ICE WILL THAW A LITTLE

Partly Cloudy and Warmer, Says Weather Man

THE TEMPERATURE.

Midnight	17	10 a. m.	28
4 a. m.	16	Noon	35
6 a. m.	16	3 p. m.	42
8 a. m.	24

In the absence of official reports, which were delayed by wire trouble Monday morning, the Weather Man sat in his Chemical Building den with nothing to do.

At 9:30 a. m. he twirled his thumbs around this way. At 9:35 he twirled them around that way. Between twirls his thumbs were not in motion.

At 9:40 the wires went to work, and the following forecast was given out:

"Partly cloudy and warmer Monday night and Tuesday; south and southwest winds; minimum temperature Monday night, 32 degrees."

TOLD IN GESTURE OF HER HUGGING

Cock by Swinging Her Arms in Circle Described Love's Embrace.

Mrs. Anna Marx, a cook employed at 4142 West Pine boulevard, explained with great unction on the witness stand in Division No. 7 of the Circuit Court Monday her several flirtations with the insurance agent, the policeman, the barber, and so on, concerning which witnesses for her former husband, George Maisch of 4163 Osceola street, had testified in support of his effort to obtain the custody of their 11-year-old daughter, Lillie.

Her own daughter, Mrs. Rose Calvert, had told about the insurance agent, whose name, she said, was "Shannahan or something like that." Mrs. Calvert said she often went in, when her mother was living at 4708 Michigan avenue, and found the barber sitting at the dinner table.

She also told about Ziegler, the barber, calling evenings after her father and mother separated. Her mother told her, she said, that she was going to marry Ziegler as soon as she procured a divorce from Maisch. She and other witnesses also told about alleged flirtations with a man named Flaherty, Policeman Eichelberger and Henry Marx, who afterwards became the husband of Mrs. Maisch.

Mrs. Calvert told of her mother having said that she hoped God would strike her daughter dead if she testified against her mother.

"It is hard to have to testify against my own mother," said she, "but it is the truth."

Policeman Kissed Her Hand.

Mrs. Emma J. Gardner of Arloe station, formerly a neighbor of Mrs. Maisch on Michigan avenue, testified that the insurance agent sometimes stayed around all day. She had also seen the policeman on the beat kiss the hand of Mrs. Maisch on the street and Mrs. Maisch had told her a lot of things.

George Calvert, son-in-law of Mrs. Marx, testified that he had seen her waving a flag and a handkerchief at Ziegler, the barber, when she was two blocks away.

Mrs. Marx cheerfully admitted that her daughter once found her in the arms of Ziegler.

"She did find us hugging and kissing," said she. "That's right. We were in a loving embrace."

She encircled a section of atmosphere by way of illustration, and the stenographer shrank back. She explained that she didn't intend that her daughter should be a witness to the courtship.

"I thought the door was locked," said she, "but it wasn't."

"You were engaged to him and expected to marry him," suggested her attorney.

"Sure. I was going to marry him, but he was a little slow, and I said to myself, 'Huh, what's the use of me marrying him.' He won't make me a better wife than I can make for myself."

"But you were engaged to him?"

"Sure I was."

On cross-examination she said that it was after she obtained her divorce that she broke with Ziegler.

"I had a talk with him," said she. "I said: 'Now, see here, Ziegler, we've got to come to a close. Is it going to be a buckle up or what?' He didn't talk to suit me and I gave him the mitten."

She told of marrying Marx in Texas and was asked if she went there with him.

"No," she answered. "He went on ahead. I wasn't sure that I wanted to marry him. Yes, I was sure that I wanted to marry him, all right, but I wasn't sure whether he meant business. He stuttered so much that you couldn't hardly understand him. And besides, he drank so much that I wasn't sure whether it was him talking or the whisky in him talking. So I though I would let him go ahead and if he wrote back that he wanted to marry me I would go. He wrote and I went."

Applauded the Judge.

She was asked if she had not been in trouble on one occasion and denied it emphatically.

"Mrs. M-a-i-s-c-h was never in trouble," she said, spelling the name.

When she was asked if her former husband had not contributed to the support of the child she said with fine scorn that she thought "that rich lady over there got all of his money," alluding to the second wife of Maisch.

When Judge Reynolds announced that he would withhold his decision until Wednesday Mrs. Marx regarded it as a favorable sign and clapped her hands gleefully. As she passed out of the courtroom with the child she taunted her husband and his second wife and witnesses by pointing her finger at them and hissing at them.

Mrs. Marx had a divorce suit pending in Judge Taylor's court against her second husband.

Diamonds Gone, Bellboy Held.

Smith Rice, formerly a bellboy at the Monticello Hotel, has been arrested, following reports of thefts from guests. C. L. Armstrong told the police that clothing valued at $75 had been taken from his room. Mrs. H. F. Branham lost a diamond ring.

WOMAN BEATEN ON STREET BY NEGRO ROBBER

DAUGHTER WAS WITH HER

They Were Passing Under Electric Light When Assailant Came From Behind.

SUSPECT IS RELEASED

Negro Minister Caught in Alton Not Right Man, Says Police Chief.

Mrs. Lillian Glass, a prominent woman in Bunker Hill, Ill., is still in a critical condition as the result of an attack for robbery made upon her by a negro, who lay in wait for her near her home and struck her with a club. Her skull was fractured and she was unconscious 24 hours.

Robert Otey, a negro, arrested at Alton as he stepped from a train Sunday night, was released Monday after Chief of Police Jewett of Bunker Hill had gone to Alton and identified the negro as a traveling evangelist who had been holding meetings in Bunker Hill. Jewett said that he knew that Otey was at the home of a Mrs. Brown far away from the Glass home at the time of the attack.

Otey lives in Alton and is an assistant minister in the Baptist church, although not ordained.

The assault was committed under an electric light at a street corner two blocks from the railroad station. Mrs. Glass was accompanied by her daughter, Elizabeth, 7 years old. It was 9:30 o'clock. They were returning to their home, five blocks away, from an errand to a drug store.

Hiding Behind a Tree.

Just as they turned the corner a negro stepped from behind a tree, struck Mrs. Glass a terrific blow on the head with a bludgeon and as she sank to the sidewalk he wrested her purse from her hand and ran south toward the limits of the town.

The screams of Elizabeth attracted several persons to the scene. They found Mrs. Glass lying on the sidewalk. She is expected to recover.

The frightened child, as soon as she could be quieted, told what had occurred and indicated the direction in which the negro had gone. The police were quickly informed and search began immediately, under the direction of Chief Jewett. His men and volunteers divided into two parties and search was made of the town and nearby country. The authorities of the adjoining towns were notified.

Chief Jewett received information Sunday that a negro had been seen to come out of concealment along the Big Four Railroad track and board a train going toward Alton, after it had passed the station. The Alton police were notified and the arrest of Otey followed.

Mrs. Glass is 35 years old. She is the widow of Dr. A. L. Glass, who died recently while they were residing in Texas. After his death Mrs. Glass and her daughter returned to Bunker Hill, where they had formerly resided. Since her return she has taken an active part in church work.

The purse which the negro snatched from the hand of Mrs. Glass contained $25.

ACID, NOT ILLNESS KILLED JEWETT

Maplewood Man Was Found Unconscious Beside Railroad Tracks in Suburb.

Walter O. Jewett of 7224 Rosalie avenue, Maplewood, died of carbolic acid poisoning, according to a verdict returned by a Coroner's jury in St. Louis Monday.

Jewett was found unconscious beside the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks near Maplewood at 8 a. m. last Friday. He had left home a few minutes before to go to his place of employment at Cupples Station.

It was at first thought that a train had struck him, but when no marks were found it was believed that he had heart disease. He was taken to the residence of his aunt, Mrs. John Kreitzer, 6308 Magnolia avenue, where he died without regaining consciousness.

A post-mortem examination was made by Dr Hartman Saturday, and an analysis Sunday showed the presence of carbolic acid.

The Coroner's verdict reads:

"We find that Walter O. Jewett died from carbolic acid poisoning, whether taken accidentally or intentionally could not be ascertained."

Jewett was 30 years old and had a wife and child. His father, F. E. Jewett, testified at the inquest that he knew of no motive for suicide. His son, he said, had bought a house on time and payments all was slightly in arrears in meeting the notes, but he did not think that this difficulty was sufficient to cause him to take his life. No bottle was found near where Jewett was picked up.

Accidentally Killed Friend.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EXETER, Mo., Jan. 21.—Claude Haley, a young farmer living eight miles west of here, was shot and almost instantly killed Sunday evening by a young man named Davis. Haley and Davis were returning from a country store on horseback when they were attacked by a dog. Davis drew a revolver from his pocket and fired two shots at the beast. Finally his horse became frightened and the revolver was accidentally discharged, the ball striking young Haley in the left breast near the heart. Young Haley alighted from his horse as if nothing had happened, and threw two stones at the dog, but he soon fell over dead.

New Assistant Chief of Detectives

THE POLICEMAN OF THE HOUR

"Tipped" to Succeed Chief Desmond

"JIM" SMITH.

Police Board To Make Changes in Detective Department and Name Capt. Boyd's Successor—John J. Keely Expected to Get His Old Place Back as Assistant Chief.

James H. Smith, who was appointed Assistant Chief of Detectives Friday, is the man of the hour in the police department. At an important meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners beginning at 4:30 p. m. Monday it is believed that Chief of Detectives Desmond will be asked to resign and that Smith will be made Chief. Chief Desmond, who is most vitally interested in these possible changes, declares that he has not been informed of the board's plans by a member of it or any one else, and that he simply does not know what is to be done.

He was not consulted concerning Keely's resignation and the reinstatement of Smith.

John J. Keely, who, as Assistant Chief of Detectives, seemed to have the confidence of the board and was assigned to gather evidence which resulted in the dismissal of several members of the department, will likely be re-instated in his old position or promoted to the rank of captain, it is said.

Detectives at the Four Courts who have analyzed this latest Police Department mystery as they would any other puzzle, have come to the conclusion that their Chief is "up against it." Analyzing the circumstances under which Smith went back into the department they find that the chain is so perfect that it precludes every other theory than that Desmond will have to retire.

Thing Desmond Should Have Known.

Although no intimation has ever been given to Desmond that his resignation was wanted or would be accepted, yet it is said that members of the board feel that he, as head of the department, should have known of the acts of the detective force which brought several members of it into disrepute and resulted in their dismissal.

Desmond's fine record as a thief catcher is admitted by the board, and it is also admitted that probably he has no superior in obtaining confessions from criminals.

In solving the mystery to their own satisfaction the detectives have considered the known fact that Smith earned a salary of $3000 a year working for R. C. Kerens, and that it would have been the unlikeliest thing in the world for him to give up that position to take the office of Assistant Chief of Detectives, which pays but $1800 a year. They can see no reason why he could have been induced to give up his $3000 a year job to take Desmond's, which pays $3500.

In order to get Smith back into the department it was necessary to have a vacancy in the office of Assistant Chief of Detectives. As Smith resigned from this position several years ago, he could be reinstated. Keely's commission had expired. He was first re-commissioned for four years, and then resigned. By this action Keely can be re-instated to his old position or promoted at any time. If the board had wanted to get rid of Keely he would not have been recommissioned. He would have been discharged, and could not again have entered the department except by starting at the bottom as a probationary patrolman.

Keely's commission expired Jan. 1. He was called into the meeting of the board last Friday afternoon to be recommissioned. Half an hour later he walked out of the board room, put on his hat and coat and left the Four Courts without telling anybody "good-bye." He met Desmond and others in the corridors and merely said that he had been re-commissioned, and left without making any statement about having resigned.

Smith's Choice Surprised Desmond.

Almost as soon as Keely left James H. Smith appeared at the Four Courts and walked right into the board room. When he emerged half an hour later he was introduced to Chief Desmond by Chief Creecy as the new assistant chief of detectives. Desmond knew absolutely nothing about such changes until they were already made, a thing unprecedented in Police Board affairs.

Before going into the executive session of the Police Board Friday, Keely had no intention of resigning. He had never expressed dissatisfaction with his position. It was known that he aspired to be promoted to a captaincy, but under the conditions of his resignation that is still possible.

The board has never indicated to Desmond that he is to be removed as Chief of Detectives, but by the process of deduction headquarters detectives cannot see how he can be retained. There is also much speculation as to whether Desmond will follow the example of Kiely and fight to hold his office. His commission doesn't expire until next September. Those who have come to the conclusion that Desmond, as they say, "is up against it," are also of the opinion that any attempt on his part to fight charges which might be preferred against him would be useless, for the reason that after he had spent a lot of money in lawyers' fees he would ultimately be dismissed.

Smith is known to be in high repute with Gov. Folk, for whom he did detective work when the present chief executive was Circuit Attorney. He had a long experience as assistant chief of detectives, and the board has high regard for his executive ability.

If the board wants Smith as Chief of Detectives, it is believed by those who have carefully considered all of the facts that Desmond will not stand in the way of the board carrying out its plans.

Commissioners Are Silent.

Members of the board were seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter and refused to discuss the situation. They say that no charges have ever been preferred against Keely, and that he has been considered an efficient and faithful officer. While members of the board will not say that he will be taken back into the department, they do give out that impression.

A captain will be created to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Capt. Samuel J. Boyd. Lieutenants McKenna, Hanna and Mansfield are in line for promotion, and a member of the board says the new captain will likely be selected from this list.

Gov. Folk, when seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter in Jefferson City Monday, said that he knew nothing whatever about the Police Board's plans.

"Members of the board are not inclined to discuss for publication the probable changes in the department at the meeting Monday," said Commissioner John W. Fristoe, "Because this might defeat their purposes. I cannot talk about the matter at all, and will not confirm or deny any reports concerning changes in the detective department. These questions will all be settled at Monday's meeting."

Commissioner George P. Jones was also non-committal.

"The meeting will be an important one," said he. "We are going to make some promotions. I can't talk about what is to be done.

"I can't tell you whether Keely will be taken back, Smith promoted and Desmond removed or reduced in rank. I would like to give the information if I could, but I simply can't do it."

Boyd's Place to Be Filled.

Commissioner R. Bland said: "I do not think the session of the board will be a long one. The board has its plans made, but I am not spokesman and cannot discuss them."

"Is Keely to be taken back into the department?" he was asked.

"I can't tell you about that," said he. "Keely is regarded as an efficient man, and no charges have been made against him. We think Smith is a good man. He has been very frank with the board. We consider him a man of good executive ability."

"Is Desmond to be removed or reduced?"

Mr. Bland simply replied that he could not talk about the situation.

"Everything will be known after the meeting Monday," he said. "This much I can say: that the vacancy caused by the death of Capt. Boyd will be filled.

"The board has never considered the question of filling this vacancy. It was reported after a meeting held last week that the board was deadlocked. This report was caused by a joking remark by someone. The board has never taken a ballot on the candidates to succeed Capt. Boyd. Lieutenants Mansfield, Hanna and McKenna are the lieutenants whose records entitle them to first consideration. I have made up my mind who I am going to vote for, but I don't know who the other members favor."

President Stewart said that he wasn't going to talk about Police Board plans.

"Wait and see what is done," he said.

FORMAL CHARGE AGAINST BAILEY NAMES FRANCIS

Texas Legislator Draws Up Graft Accusations and Involves St. Louisans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 21.—Representative W. A. Cocke of Blair today filed with the Senate Investigating Committee a formal statement of charges against United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey. The statement is addressed to both the Senate and House committees, and is to be used as a basis for the legislative investigation.

David R. Francis and his brother of St. Louis are named in one of the counts, which alleges that Bailey entered into an agreement with the Francis brothers and H. Clay Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., whereby it was agreed that "for certain services rendered" Bailey was to be financially assisted.

BABY IN POLICE COURT.

Court and Spectators Interested in Child.

A baby, just able to toddle about, was the center of an interested group in the City Hall Police Court Monday morning. The child was carried to the stand by Mrs. Annie Locatell of 1344 Merchant street. While Mrs. Locatell was testifying the baby became frightened at its strange surroundings and began to cry. Mrs. Locatell was unable to quiet it. After a while she placed it on the edge of the Judge's stand, where it sat widejyed and regarding, ready to burst into tears at any minute.

The Judge did not even hint of contempt of court when several men present sought to amuse the child.

Mrs. Locatell was a witness against her brother, Charles Dietel, who was accused of striking her when she asked him to pay room rent. Judge Tracy fined him $15 and later stayed the execution on the intercession of his mother and his promise of good behavior.

BRITAIN ANGRY WITH JAMAICAN GOVERNOR; HE HAS TO EXPLAIN

Colonial Office Asks Swettenham to Give His Version of Situation Which Made Him Send American Ships From Kingston in Time of Need.

OFFICIALS CALL LETTER TO DAVIS UNJUSTIFIABLE

Ministers at London Were Glad America Came to Rescue—Jamaican Executive's Wife Cooks in the Hospitals, Evidencing Need of Aid.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—After conferences today between officials of the Foreign Office and of the Colonial Office, the latter cabled to Gov. Swettenham of Jamaica asking for his version of the situation, which led to the withdrawal of Real Admiral Davis' American warships from Kingston on Saturday. Nothing had been received from the Governor concerning any phase of the incident. No persons were more surprised at the Governor's action than the officials of the Foreign Office who learned the first particulars through the press.

In the absence of Foreign Secretary Grey, the senior secretary of the Foreign Office immediately went to the Colonial office, and suggested the propriety of obtaining the Governor's statement without delay, as it was felt that the incident might cause irreparable injury to the friendly relations between the two governments, if not promptly explained. As a result of this suggestion, the Colonial Office cabled Gov. Swettenham to report his version of the affair. When the Foreign Officials here were shown Assistant Secretary of State Bacon's statement, cabled from Washington, to the effect that the authorities had no information regarding the departure of the American warships from Kingston, they were somewhat relieved.

Letter Was Inconsistent.

"It is unexplainable," said an official of the foreign office to the Associated Press. "If it was not for Gov. Swettenham's letter, which is so full of inconsistencies, it would be impossible to believe that he has taken such action. I am sure no one can regret it more than we do and in this I am sure I can speak for Sir Edward Grey as well as for the other officials of the foreign office. Sweetenham has always been considered to be an excellent Governor, but it is hard to see how he can justify his letter to Admiral Davis. The most charitable view to take is that he is overwrought by the great nervous strain resulting from the disaster, and it is a great relief to hear that there has not been any real trouble or foundation for any.

"But this does not explain the Governor's letter, which in one line seems to be chaff, while the next refers to the American efforts to assist in the relief work. It is a great surprise to us, as when the news came that Admiral Evans had dispatched ships to Kingston, and later that men had been landed to help in maintaining order in caring for the wounded, the greatest appreciation was expressed on every hand. Sir Edward Grey was particularly appreciative of the kindly consideration of the American Navy, and so expressed himself. Nowhere did we hear any criticism of the landing of armed men, which seemed to be quite natural in the circumstances and it is hard to realize how anybody could object to it. We shall make every effort to have the affair cleared up without delay and we hope the Americans will withhold their judgment until this can be done."

"Unaccountable Sarcasm."

Officials of the Colonial Office expressed themselves to the Associated Press on substantially the same lines. The Colonial Secretary, not having had any word from Gov. Swettenham, declined to make any statement, but one of the highest officials of the office said:

"Thus far we are only able to judge from press reports, but these appear to show that Gov. Swettenham indulged in unaccountable sarcasm.

"Possibly the terrible experience connected with the earthquake may have caused him to lose his head, and it is hoped that the present frightful conditions at Kingston will be taken into consideration. One thing is certain: Gov. Swettenham acted solely upon his own personal responsibility, as not a word has been sent from here which authorized or in any way justified such a course as he has adopted."

It is learned that the incident between Gov. Swettenham and Admiral Davis is not the only one which has arisen at Kingston, as it now develops that the activities of Sir Alfred Jones in relieving the situation at the Jamaican capital have given the Governor the idea that Sir Alfred sought to take the whole matter in hand. Sir Alfred is one of the principal business men of Great Britain, president of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, head of the Elder Dempster Steamship Line and leader of the British commercial party which has been visiting Jamaica.

John Westlake, professor of international law at the University of Cambridge, one of the members for the United Kingdom of the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague, and ex-president of the Institute of International Law, made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"I am unable to see any justification in international law for the action of Gov. Swettenham. It was rather informal on the part of Admiral Davis, if he did not ask for the Governor's permission before landing men, but the landing of men, though they were armed, was not even a technical breach of international law, as it was apparent that there was no design to exert American authority."

KINGSTON REGRETTED AMERICAN WITHDRAWAL

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 21.—In compliance with the request which implied the command of Sir James Alexander Swettenham, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the British West Indian Island of Jamaica, the American landing parties were withdrawn from Kingston Saturday, and Rear-Admiral O. H. Davis, with his relief fleet, consisting of the battleships Indiana and Missouri and the gunboat Yankton have sailed away.

Gov. Swettenham had refused the tents and offers of assistance made by the Americans, and practically told them that their kind offices were not wanted.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent saw the American officers just before they left. They felt insulted and indignant because of the refusal of their assistance, which they saw was highly necessary to the relief of suffering. The field hospital, which the Americans established Tuesday, and where scores have been attended, has been removed owing to the departure of the Americans. The other hospitals are still overcrowded.

Much indignation is manifest because of the unsympathetic attitude of Gov. Swettenham. Intensifying dissatisfaction is being expressed by all classes over what is considered the unwise refusal of American assistance. The situation was improving, but the Governor's strange action has made it worse.

Lady Swettenham Cook.

The Americans say that in comparison, conditions here are much worse than those resulting from the San Francisco disaster. The hospitals are running over, doctors and nurses are working without sleep. Lady Swettenham and her sister are serving as cooks in the hospitals. The men from the American warships gave valuable assistance before their departure. It was an abrupt and painful conclusion which forced itself upon Rear Admiral Davis and his mission of mercy. Gov. Swettenham objected to the presence of American sailors engaged in the work of cleaning the streets, guarding property and succoring the wounded and sick. His objections were expressed in a letter to Admiral Davis peremptorily requesting him to re-embark all parties which had been landed.

Admiral Davis was shocked and pained. He held a formal visit to the Governor, informing him that the Indiana, Missouri and Yankton would sail in the afternoon. The admiral said privately that immediate compliance with Gov. Swettenham's request was the only course consistent with the dignity of the United States.

On arrival Thursday, the American vessels fired a salute in honor of Gov. Swettenham. The Governor objected to this on the ground that the citizens might mistake the firing for a new earthquake. Later he declared there was no necessity for American aid, and that his Government was fully able to preserve order, attend the wounded and succor the homeless.

Admiral Davis, however, landed parties of blue jackets, who patrolled the streets, cleared away debris, razed ruins, attended the wounded, and earned the highest praise from citizens and military officers for excellent work. On the afternoon of the salute incident, Real Admiral Davis wrote Gov. Swettenham as follows:

"My dear Governor: I beg you to accept my apology for the mistake of the salute this afternoon. My order was misunderstood and the disregard of your wishes was due to a mistake in the transmission of my order. I trust the apparent disregard of your wishes will be overlooked.

For Private Relief.

"I landed working parties from both ships today to aid in clearing the various streets and buildings, and I propose landing parties tomorrow for the same purpose unless you expressly do not desire it. I think a great deal may be done in the way of assistance to private individuals without interfering with the forces of yourself and the Government officials.

"As the only object of my being here is to render such assistance as I can, I trust you will justify me in this matter for the cause of common humanity.

"I had a patrol of six men ashore today to guard and secure the archives of the United States Consulate, together with a party of ten clearing away wreckage. This party, after finishing its work at the Consulate, assisted a working party to catch thieves, recovering from them a safe taken from a jewelry store, valued at $500. From this I judge that the police surveillance of the city is inadequate for the protection of private property.

"Actuated by the same motive, namely, common humanity, I shall direct the medical officers of my squadron to make all efforts to relieve cases of distress which perhaps do not come under the observation of your medical officer.

"I shall take pleasure in meeting you at the hour appointed, 10 a. m., at headquarters house.

"I trust you approve of my action in this matter. Your obedient servant,

"C. H. DAVIS, Rear Admiral."

Gov. Swettenham responded Friday as follows:

"Dear Admiral—Thanks very much for your letter, your kind call and all the assistance given or offered us. While I most heartily appreciate the very generous offers of assistance, I feel it my duty to ask you to re-embark the working party and all parties which your kindness prompted you to land.

"If, in consideration of the Vice-Con-

SHAWNEETOWN PERIL GRAVE, SAYS MAYOR

If Ohio River Reaches 53-Foot Stage, City Is Doomed, He Fears.

STANDS 48 FEET NOW

600 Residents Have Fled, Others Are Living in Second Stories.

40 FAMILIES IN TENTS

A statement of conditions prevailing in Shawneetown, Ill., which is threatened with destruction by floods, was made to the Post-Dispatch by Mayor C. Kratz of Shawneetown over the long-distance telephone this morning.

The Mayor stated that 600 persons have fled from the town, including the members of his own family, who have gone to Evansville, Ind. Forty families, he stated, are living in tents. All residents whose homes are still tenable are occupying the second stories, and business is at a standstill.

"At 9 o'clock this morning the stage of the river reached 48 feet," said Mayor Kratz. "I believe the levee which protects the city from the Ohio River will hold until the stages reaches 53 feet. If that figure is recorded, we cannot tell what will happen to Shawneetown.

"It is impossible to say just when the crisis will be reached. It has not rained here since Saturday, but the river is steadily rising. We are making every effort to fortify the levee, and after examining it this morning I am confident that it will hold until the river reaches 53 feet.

"There is no immediate necessity for outside assistance for Shawneetown," the Mayor continued. "I think we will be able to take care of all the flood sufferers—always, of course, provided the levee holds. As I said, if the Ohio forces the levee away, there is no telling what will happen."

Asked for an estimate of the property loss in Shawneetown and vicinity, the Mayor said:

"It is impossible now to make any estimate of the loss. Until the high water recedes no one will know just what the damage is. Practically every person in town has been driven to the second floor of his residence, and one can imagine, under those circumstances, that the property loss is considerable. There are many houses in town which have been made untenable by the flood, and about forty families driven from these houses are occupying tents. For the present I would not care to make any estimate of the property loss. Just now we are busy trying to save the town from utter destruction.

"I sent the members of my family to Evansville. I will remain here as long as it is possible for anyone to remain. Statements attributed to me that there is no danger of the levee giving way are not true. There is danger, and we are doing everything in our power to avert it. But I believe the levee will hold until the 53-foot stage is reached."

STORM AT EVANSVILLE DRIVES BOATS ADRIFT.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 21.—The storm that passed over this city last night was the most serious this section has seen in many years. Many boats on the river were seriously damaged. The wind blew several gasoline launches out onto the street. Men worked all night to save the crafts from destruction.

The Parker City broke loose near the new waterworks and drifted helplessly about. The night watchman blew the distress signal, but none of the boats was able to go to the rescue. The Parker City floated into a back yard, where she now lies, and is badly disabled.

The storm was especially severe at Enterprise, in Spencer County, Ind., and several houses were wrecked there. The residence of Fred Faith and J. W. Madison were torn to splinters and the two families had a close call for their lives. Bennett's warehouse was wrecked and Miller's warehouse was badly damaged. There are 20,000 bushels of corn and wheat in the elevator and it is feared this will be lost.

Hardy's warehouse at Enterprise is under water and the 5000 bushels of corn stored there will probably be lost. John Young and family were today taken off the head of the Hurricane Island, several miles above here. Young's house was wrecked by the storm.

Shawneetown Swept by Another Heavy Storm.

CARMI, Ill., Jan. 21.—According to reports received here, a terrific windstorm swept Shawneetown yesterday, lashing the swollen waters of the Ohio against the levee with such great force that many of the residents fled in terror to higher ground. All wires reaching into the threatened city are crippled. Water is standing all over the lower parts of the town and has encroached upon many homes. It is penned in by high walls on one side and the levee on the other. The sewage pipes have long been plugged up and there is no relief for residents of the levee district.

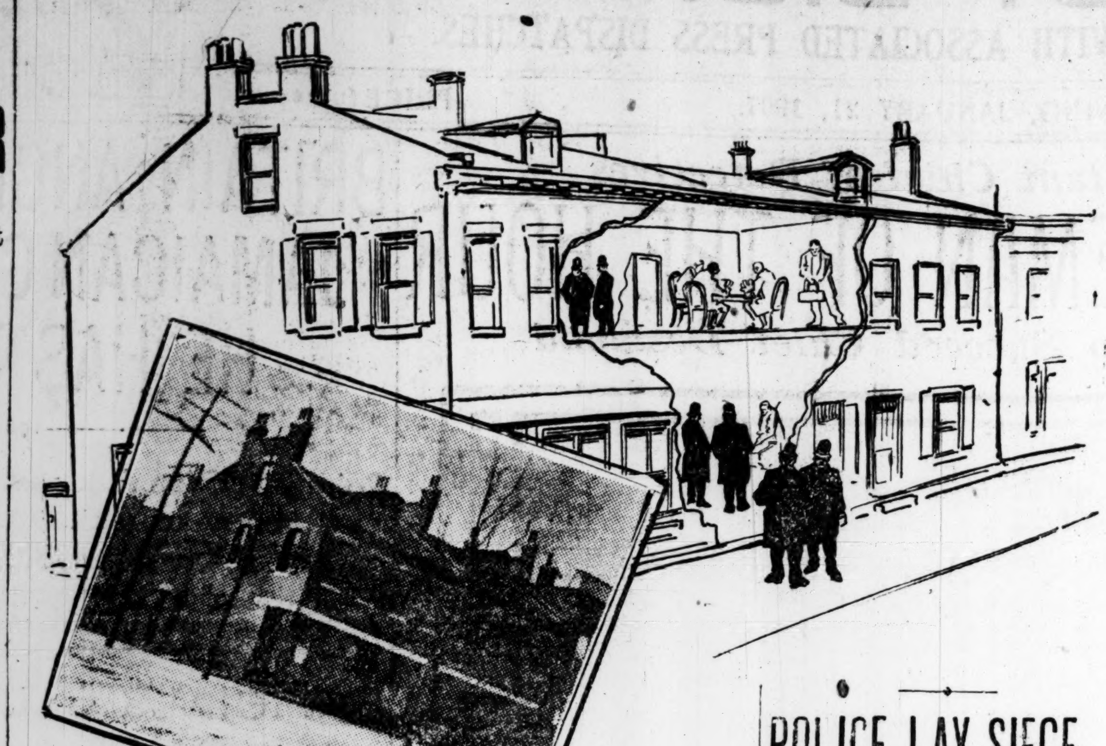

All day boats were kept in commission and the exodus continued. Water has completely surrounded the Louisville & Nashville passenger depot. A train will be made up tomorrow and run out as usual. Mayor Kratz still insists that there is no danger of the levee breaking. Boats rescued a large number of horses and cattle today, taking them to safe landings. Farmers have practically abandoned their homes, many of them losing everything. Shawneetown is still reasonably well provisioned, but there will be suffering by the last of the week if conditions do not change.

A number of tents received yesterday were pitched on the hills near the city. About thirty families are camping there. The river is almost certain to reach the 50-foot mark. For the first time in a month the sun shone today and materially helped to quiet matters. Refugees left the city today and the lower part of the city is practically depopulated tonight. The storm last night did great damage to outbuildings and poured a flood of water into the stricken town. The public schools will not open tomorrow and it is likely that they will continue closed a week. It is thought that the maximum stage of the river will be reached by Thursday or Friday, but it will require weeks of hard work to re-establish trade conditions and clean away the wreckage.

The water cannot be let out until the river recedes below the danger line. The sanitary conditions of the district will be bad for a long time. The loss to property has already been heavy. The greatest suffering is found among the farmers in the lowlands. Many families were left with scarcely any food and have been surrounded by water 10 days. Extra coaches will be put on all trains leaving Shawneetown tomorrow and a chance given refugees to escape. Business is paralyzed and but few merchants have kept their stores open. The levee has shown no signs of breaking today. Thousands of sacks of sand are kept near by for emergencies.

Old residents tonight declare that the river will reach 53 feet and if it does grave danger is threatened.

PREACHER AND HOBO SPEAK ON MARRIAGE

Clergyman Deals in Epigrams With Well Clad Congregation, "Bum" Tells His Ragged Comrades That He Would Have Been Saved From Vagrancy Had He Taken a Wife.

MARRIAGE was the subject of two sermons preached in St. Louis Sunday, one by a man in rags who called himself a "bum," the other by a minister of the gospel. The latter spoke to a well clad congregation, the former to men thinly clad, many bearing the stamp of drunkenness, all typical hoboes.

THE HOBO'S SERMON.

By John Summers at Brotherhood Welfare Association Rooms.

"Getting married saves men from being bums. If the bums had married and had a wife and children to live for they wouldn't be bums. They wouldn't, in 99 cases out of 100, let the booze get the strangle hold on them. Booze is what puts 'em down and out, and having no family to live for, they just don't care and go to bumming.

"Marriage will prevent a man from being a bum, but after he is a bum you can't help him. If you do give him a warm place to bunk, the first nickel he gets will go for whisky, I know it.

"Whisky keeps me between the gutter and the park bench. It wouldn't have been so if I had married when I was young, when I first started out. But who would have an old bum now?

"The young fellows should get married. There are few married men among the hoboes."

THE PASTOR'S SERMON.

By Rev. William Frost Bishop of Clifton Heights Presbyterian Church.

"Marriage is one of nature's combinations, but unlike a corporation, it rests on affinity. Marriage, in the last analysis, is companionship.

"Nothing under heaven, not wealth, health, station or prosperity, can make a marriage a success but love.

"The man who is absorbed in his business and marries should be prosecuted for bigamy. He is already married to his business.

"The word wife means weaver, one who says at home and helps by spinning cloth for clothing and the home. God said Eve should be a helpmeet for Adam. I want a helpmeet, but I want her to do something else than help me eat.

"When parents are absurdly foolish and tyrannical, once in a thousand cases, elopement is justifiable, but only then.

"The women brought us out of Paradise. We should follow them until they take us back.

"The phrase, 'fall in love,' is misleading. It should be 'fly up in love,' like a bird in a tree."

BUSCH ENJOYING TRAVEL IN SOUTH

At Atlanta, Ga., He Sits Chatting With Bottle of Beer at Elbow.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 21.—The special train bearing Adolphus Busch arrived hree at 7:10 a. m. over the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway.

During the forenoon Mr. Busch was in the observation compartment of his private car, the Adolphus, with a kuart bottle of his beer at his elbow. He seemed to be in good spirits and talked to Dr. Luedeking and members of his family.

The line was cleared for a quick run to Augusta, but the chief dispatcher there was not willing to run the special over the road, as he feared a wreck. Unless gives his consent the party will have to go by regular train and will arrive at Aiken at 10 p. m.

If the Busch train is permitted to go through on a special schedule, Aiken can be reached at 5 p. m.

Ill From Too Much Study.

Miss Eleanor White, 42 years old, who is at the City Hospital from a nervous breakdown due to overstudy, will recover with proper treatment, physicians there say. She formerly taught school at Quincy, Ill., then completed the law course at Ann Arbor and was admitted to the bar in Illinois. She entered Barnes Medical College in St. Louis and later studied at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Chicago. She practiced medicine in Chicago until last July.

This Woman Stole Trousers.

Pauline Kline pleaded guilty Monday in the Court of Criminal Correction to stealing a pair of trousers and an overcoat from a department store. She was charged jointly with May Harrington. The latter's trial is pending an examination as to her sanity. Judge Taylor sentenced her to one year in the Workhouse and paroled her until Feb. 2 with instructions to leave town in three days or the sentence would be executed.

Drops Dead at Son's Trial.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Jan. 21.—William D. Lynch, a well-known farmer living several miles from here, dropped dead in the courtroom here Saturday, while his son, Amos, was on trial for displaying a deadly weapon in a threatening manner. The excitement of the trial overcame Lynch and he died before he could be removed from the room.

M'DAVID TO FIGHT FREIGHT RATE LAW

He Wants Hadley to Explain the Defects in the Present Statute.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 21.—Senator McDavid of Springfield said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he would oppose the new freight rate law advocated by Attorney-General Hadley unless Mr. Hadley can show that the existing statute is unconstitutional. If the law as now framed cannot stand the test of the courts, the Attorney-General may be asked by he Senate to explain why he continues to expend the State's money in seeking to enforce it.

Senator McDavid estimated that Gen. Hadley had expended probably $15,000 during the past 18 months in gathering testimony incident to the suits filed by the railroad companies to prevent the operation of the maximum freight rate law.

"What we desire to know," said Senator McDavid, "is why, with the contest going on in the courts, Mr. Hadley is anxious to have another law passed. The question naturally arises: 'What's the matter with the law we already have?' I understand Gen. Hadley desires to increase the classification so as to include a wider range in commodities.

"There is no objection to that proposition, but why, in order to effect such an amendment, is it necessary to enact a new law?

"I voted for the present law over the protests of the largest shippers in my district. Before I consent to approve further legislation I desire to have Mr. Hadley explain the exact situation with reference to the maximum freight rate fight.

"In so doing I have no personal feeling whatever toward Gen. Hadley. It is simply a case of being in the dark and demanding light."

WALKED BEFORE CAR.

It Is Believed Michael Whelan Attempted Suicide.

A shoeless, scantily dressed man who stepped before a southbound Broadway car at Broadway and Adelaide street early Sunday morning has been identified by the police as Michael Whelan of Sixth street and Franklin avenue. Whelan's skull was fractured at the base and he is not expected to live. He has been unconscious since being taken to the City Hospital.

Motorman J. C. Downs told the police that he believed Whelan attempted to kill himself, as he walked deliberately before the car, which was moving swiftly. George Zink of 4025 Kossuth avenue, who was riding on the front end of the car, bore out Down's statement. A memorandum book found on Whelan, with the name of Lawrence J. Doran of 4958 Delmar boulevard, led the police to believe at first that the injured man was Doran, but the latter appeared afterwards at the hospital. He could not identify Whelan nor account how his name came into his possession. Whelan is about 35 years old.

POLICE LAY SIEGE TO CLUB 37 HOURS

Capt. Pickel Says He Is Determined to Raid the Monroe Club.

"MEMBERS HAVE PULL"

Circuit Attorney Sager Says Statement About "Pull" Is Ridiculous.

Following a police siege of the Monroe Club, at Twelfth and North Market street, from 6 p. m. Saturday until 7 a. m. Monday, Capt. Picket of the North Market Street Station said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I am after that club because its members have a pull with a certain politician. This pull extends even to the office of the Circuit Attorney, so that it is impossible for us to prosecute any member of the club whom we may arrest. I know they have this pull because they supported this politician for Justice of the Peace at the recent election, and when one of them is arrested he comes in a hurry to bail them out."

Circuit Attorney Sager said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"Capt. Pickel's statement is ridiculous and without foundation. I would not undertake to deny that persons may have boasted that they have influence which extends to my office, but such boasts are idle. I do not even know where the Monroe Club is. I could not check a proscution of it for violating the lid law, because that is outside the jurisdiction of this office. I do not know any individual members of the club and the politician of whom Pickel speaks has no influence over me."

Six members of the club were forced to sleep on card tables at the club Sunday night because of the police siege. Capt. Pickel denies that the place was surrounded. Charles Enyart, formerly a saloon keeper, now secretary of the club, says it was.

Policemen Keep Watch.

"There were six policemen here all night," he said. "They send two policemen to watch the place every night, even during the week, and they keep two here all day on Sunday.

"Yesterday afternoon more came and threatened to raid us. Our clubrooms are on the second floor. On the ground floor is the office of the club and back of that there is a public poolroom, for which we have a license.

"At 2 p. m. Sunday Sergt. Lange entered the poolroom, where two patrolmen were stationed. He remained there a few minutes and then he went up a back stairway and looked through a window of the clubroom.

Six men were playing cards there. Lange came down and said to me:

Got Sandwiches and Coal.

"I am going to arrest every one of those men when they leave this place. If I can't put a charge against them I can hold them 20 hours, anyway. He left the two patrolmen in charge and went to the North Market Street Station, two blocks away. We knew he was coming back, so we laid in a supply of sandwiches and extra coal for the men upstairs. They said they were willing to stay there and see it out.

"Lange came back with four policemen. Two men were stationed at each of the three doors—front, side and rear.

"We thought they would leave at midnight, but they stuck until 7 a. m. As soon as the police left the men upstairs, who had slept on the tables, left the building. We have a regular charter for this club, which has been in operation a year. The police are persecuting us for political reasons."

Five of the members of the club who were held prisoners for 17 hours were Arthur Fisher, Robert Olsen, Fred Tiehmann, Arthur Schluer and Thomas Dugan.

Brewers Club Closed.

The club of the Brewery Workers' Association, Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, which has a petition in the Circuit Court to restrain the police from raiding it, was not running Sunday according to the police.

Mrs. Ledorin von Vlierberger, wife of a saloon keeper at 225 South Main street, was arrested Sunday charged with selling liquor. Frank Wuhrmann of 1014 Arsenal street and William Niemann of 314 Market street were arrested in a barber shop at 218 Pine street Sunday. The police say they saw the men drink in the shop and that they admit buying liquor there.

Will Invite Grocers Here.

A party of St. Louis grocers are on the way to Dallas, Tex., to attend a meeting of the National Retail Grocers' Association, to open there Tuesday. They will endeavor to have St. Louis chosen as the next place of meeting. In the party were L. F. Padberg, president of the St. Louis Retail Grocers Association; C. H. Bauer, Henry C. Lutz, A. J. Rehkamper, J. D. Lukenbill, D. H. Morische, J. F. Trost, Godfrey Wolf, Louis Dauwalter, George J. Schulte, Robert E. Lee, Nicholas Peterson and H. J. Luft.

Young Priest's Funeral.

The funeral of Rev. Father John Berns, who died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Berns, 2004 East College avenue, from an attack of typhoid fever, will take place Tuesday morning from Our Lady of Perpetual Succor Church, Twentieth and Linton streets. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery. Rev. Father Berns was 28 years old and a graduate of Kenrick Seminary, and was in charge of a church at Hannibal, Mo.

EXPLOSION SENT 40 TO DEATH AS TRAIN PASSED

Big Four Officials Unable to Account for Sandford (Ind.) Accident.

THIRTY-FIVE INJURED

Fire and Cold Hampered Rescuers—Women Cared for the Injured.

TRAIN BLOWN OFF TRACK

Escaping Gas From Pipe Line May Have Ignited Powder in Car.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 21.—According to officials of the Big Four Railroad Co., the number of passengers killed by the explosion of a carload of powder at Sandford, nine miles west of here, Sunday night as a passenger train passed, may reach forty. Opinion as to the cause of the wreck differs. The crew of the freight train, to which the car of powder was attached, believe that the powder was exploded by the concussion made by the passenger train as it passed. Another theory is that gas escaping from an oil pipe line near by entered the powder car and a spark from the passing engine ignited the gas. Others express the belief that the disaster was due to a tramp or an intoxicated man firing a shot into the car.

The list of the known dead and injured follows:

Identified dead:

WILLIAM THOMPSON, Sandford, Ind.
WILLIAM DAVIS, Vermillion, Ill.
J. W. SUTHERLAND, Paris, Ill.
JOHN FRANKLIN, Ashmore, Ill.
A. D. HECTOR, Elbridge, Ill.
CHARLES GESNELL, Paris, Ill.
CLAUDE STEELE, Sandford, Ill.
A. A. HICKS, Sandford, Ind.
DR. HASLETT, Grand View, Ill.
FRANK FIELDS, thought to be from Findlay, O.
MARY EARHART, Terre Haute, Ind.
H. BLAKELEY, Findlay, O.
JOHN A. BOWEN, Mattoon, Ill.

Missing and believed to have been burned to death:

Mrs. Bud Wolfe, Sandford, Ind.
Two daughters of Mrs. Wolfe, aged 8 and 6.
A. Kukendahl, thought to be a Vandalia fireman.
Body of an aged woman, burned beyond recognition.
Four charred bodies, not identified.

Injured at St. Anthony's Hospital, Terre Haute:

Keith Bryan, Salem, O.
Miss Cora Buckley, Terre Haute.
L. F. Rose, engineer maintenance of way, Big Four, Mattoon, Ill.
Mrs. L. F. Rose, Mattoon, Ill.
Miss Bessie Southcott, Shelbyville, Ill.
Miss Anna Cummins, Terre Haute.
Miss Frances Jones, Terre Haute.

Injured in hospital at Paris, Ill.:

Alvin Dane, Terre Haute; will recover.
U. S. Wishard, Franklin, Ind.; will recover.
Harry Jarred, fireman of No. 3, Mattoon, Ill.; perhaps fatally.
Louis Prince, Vermillion, Ill.
Edward Welch, Mattoon, Ill.; engineer No. 3.
George Richards, Memphis, Tenn.
A. B. Carpenter, Vermillion, Ill.
Joseph Hendricks, Mattoon, Ill.
Frank Thomas, Mattoon, Ill.
Bud Wolfe, Sandford, Ind.
Charles Boggles, Westville, Ill.; may die.
Perry Dick, Sandford, Ind.
Will Davis, Vermillion, Ill.; head; may die.
H. A. Epperson, Watfield, Ill.
J. W. Loter, Terre Haute, Ind.; may die.
Lindsey Eddington, Vermillion, Ill.; may die.
Charles A. Wiley, Kansas, Ill.; may die.
T. C. Ainsworth, Paris, Ill.
Oscar Gilbert, Dudley.
S. C. Sisk, Paris, Ill.
Fred Vermillion, Sandford, Ind.
Harry P. Ogden, Vermillion, Ill.
Charles Root, Mattoon, Ill.

P. O. Rhodes, Sandford.
Harry Shickle, Terre Haute.

Whole Train Blown Away.

The entire train was blown from the track by the explosion, the coaches were demolished and the engine was hurled 50 feet. Huge masses of iron were found hundreds of feet from the track. The tank of the passenger engine was thrown nearly 100 feet. The freight train was demolished.

One thousand feet of track were torn up and a great hole shows where the power car stood. The car was being hauled from Concord Junction, Mass., to East Alton, Ill., and contained 500 kegs of powder. The explosion also destroyed all telegraphic communication and Sandford was isolated for hours.

Fire broke out before the eyes of citizens and rescuers, who had rushed to the aid of the injured and many were burned to death before help could reach them. There was not a sufficient water supply to fight the flames and the bitter cold added to the suffering.

When the fire drove the rescuers away they waited until it died down and then dragged out the charred bodies. Men searched near-by fields and found pieces of flesh and wearing apparel. Four mutilated bodies were found in the woods several hundred feet from the tracks.

Windows Were Shattered.

Sandford was badly shocked. Windows were shattered, dishes and furniture were broken and doors were torn from their hinges. Heavy rains had rendered the streets of Sandford almost impassable. As the passenger engine, No. 3, went by the powder car standing on an adjoining track, the explosion came without warning. Among the first rescued was L. F. Rose of Mattoon, Ill., engineer of maintenance of way of the Big Four. Mrs. Rose was hurt and collapsed while attending her husband. The women of Sandford helped care for the injured.

Engineer Welch and Fireman Jarred of Mattoon, who were in charge of the passenger engine, were hurled nearly a hundred feet and fell in a muddy field.

The injured number 35, although some are not in hospitals.

When you require a can of peas—"Squirrel" brand goods will always please.

Rescued With Rope, Dies.

Rescued with a rope and a ladder from a pit into which he fell, L. C. Hooker, a carpenter, 60 years old, died Sunday on his way to the City Hospital. It is thought that his death was due to poisonous gases which he inhaled. Hooker boarded at 7122 Piccadilly avenue, Greenwood. He was found in the rear of a saloon near by by Edward Kuhn of 7317 Manchester avenue and William Nash of 2601 North Leffingwell avenue.

Detective's Flat Robbed.

While the family of Detective J. Harvey James were absent thieves entered his home at 2920 Michigan avenue and stole $15 in cash and several articles of jewelry. They entered through a window. The rooms of the flat upstairs were also rifled. Benjamin Glietz, a roomer, reported the loss of four valuable rings. Among the other articles stolen were a gold neck chain and ring belonging to Mrs. James.

LAHM CUP RACE RULES; START ANYWHERE ANY TIME

(This is not the race for the Bennett cup, to be sailed from St. Louis, but is under the control of the same committee and the rules indicate those likely to be adopted for the St. Louis event.)

THE contest shall be open to all aerostats, aeronauts and aeronefs, without restrictions, and a contestant is at liberty to start from any point in the United States at any time that he may desire. Contestants must be licensed pilots, or must have made ten ascensions.

At least one hour before making an ascension for this cup the contestant must notify the Aero Club of America by letter or telegraph of his intention to start in the contest, giving the point from which the ascension will be made and the point of landing, and the hour must be reported within twenty-four hours.

Satisfactory evidence must be furnished to the Aero Club Contest Committee on these points in the form they may desire.

MUST EXCEED 402 MILES.

EACH contestant will be obliged to furnish a statement containing the name and capacity of balloon, names of passengers, place of ascension, date and time of ascent, date and time of descent, name of owner of property where descent is made, name and distance of nearest town or village and the name and distance of nearest railroad station.

The first winner will be the first aeronaut who, after March 1, 1907, shall make a continuous flight which shall exceed 648 kilometers (402 miles) in distance measured in a straight line from the starting point to the landing point. Thereafter whenever any contestant exceeds the distance measured as above, made by the holder of the cup, he will be declared the holder of the cup until such time as his record shall be exceeded. If any one contestant shall remain holder of the cup continuously for a period of three years the cup shall become his property at the expiration of that time.

NO STOPOVER ON EARTH.

THE term landing point shall mean the first point after starting where the aerostat, aeronaut or aeronef shall come to rest on the earth. After the first landing further flight will not be included in the record of distance. The cup will remain in the possession of the Aero Club of America until definitely won. The name of each successive holder and the date and distance of his flight will be engraved upon the cup.

Statements of ascensions must be accompanied by the proper sheets of the United States Geological Survey, with the places of ascent and descent accurately marked. In addition, the landing certificate must contain a statement signed by two responsible persons, not passengers, who were present at the place of the descent.

RIVER FOUR FEET FROM DANGER LINE

Stage Is 26 Feet and Further Rise of Two Feet Is Predicted.

With the river still rising and now only four feet below the danger line of 30 feet, so that the long line of wharfboats on the levee front is almost in the shadow of the elevated tracks, rivermen are shaking their heads gravely and admit that the situation is serious for St. Louis and its vicinity. A stage of 28 feet at St. Louis Wednesday is the Government prediction.

That the situation is decidedly grave for points near St. Louis is what is chiefly worrying the St. Louis rivermen. The Illinois River, which enters the Mississippi above Alton, is flooding its shores. And the Ohio is rising so rapidly that destructive floods are expected on the Mississippi below Cairo, where the Ohio runs into the larger stream.

The river bulletin issued Monday by the Weather Bureau was as follows:

"The Illinois River will continue to rise rapidly and extensive overflow is indicated along this stream. The stage will reach 22 feet at Peoria, Thursday or Friday, and 18 feet at Beardstown toward the end of the week. The Mississippi is rising at Grafton and Chester, and a stage of 28 feet will be recorded by Wednesday."

The rivermen say that the cold weather will very materially check the rise of water, because it has stopped the rains. But they point to the rise in the Illinois and say that this water must come down to St. Louis and raise the Mississippi here at least two feet. Although the Ohio enters the Mississippi many miles below St. Louis it affects the high-water conditions here very appreciably.

Ohio Causes Backwater.

"You see," explained Capt. Garrison of the harbor boat Mark Twain to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "the Ohio is rising so that when it enters the Mississippi at Cairo it causes backwater. As a result, the Mississippi from Cairo up to Cape Girardeau is just like a lake—without any current.

"Now all the water coming down the Mississippi past St. Louis when it strikes this lake without any curren is going to have difficulty getting through as fast as it came down. That is why the river at St. Louis is going to rise, although the rains have stopped.

"I don't expect that the danger line will be reached. It was nearly 26 feet this morning. In the next 24 hours I think it will be somewhere between 28 and 29 feet. But I don't think it will go over 29 feet. It might very easily, however, stay at 29 feet for a week or so before it goes down. Then there is the possibility of more rain."

Other of the rivermen are not so hopeful as Capt. Garrison. In the boat stores along the levee it was said Monday that there was a good chance of the danger line being reached in the next three days.

Week of Higher Water.

Local Weather Forecaster Bowie said: "From the reports that have come to the bureau from points near St. Louis, the river will probably keep on rising there until the end of the week.

"By Wednesday I think that 28 feet anyway will be reached. As the rains have stopped I don't think that it will rise very much above 28 feet.

"The weather conditions during the last two weeks have been remarkable. The warm weather that we have had for the first part of January is unusual. Then the heavy rainfall made the situation for this time of the year all the more unusual.

"It is going to get warmer here in St. Louis. The area of high barometric pressure, with its attendant cold wave, has advanced eastward to the Atlantic Coast and southward to the Gulf. Freezing temperature is reported from as far south as the Gulf States, and Sunday night frost formed at Jacksonville, Fla."

Levee Is Covered.

The rise in the river has changed the entire appearance of the levee front. For every foot of rise there is from 5 to 10 feet advance made by the water up the levee stones. As a result it is now only a short step from under the elevated tracks to the pontoon-like gang planks leading to the wharfboats, where before there was half a city block of rough cobble stones to stumble over.

From the City Harbor House down on the levee stones at the foot of Chestnut street the crooked line of wharfboats look very close to the houses on the levee front.

One of the things feared by some and welcomed by others if the river continues to rise is the fate of Chesley Island. The southern end of the island is already under several feet of water and if the river continues to rise there is grave danger that the famous but seldom visited island will slip under the water and its population of hogs and human garbage reducers will be washed away.

The rivermen say that it will take a further rise of about seven feet before the island would be completely covered.

Some School Answers.

Among the answers to questions at a recent school examination were the following interesting examples of youthful misinformation: "Gross ignorance is 144 times as bad as just ordinary ignorance." "Anchorite, an old-fashioned hermit sort of a fellow who has anchored hisself to one place." "The liver is an infernal organ." "Vacuum is nothing with the air tucked out of it, put up in a pickle bottle—it is very hard to get."

AERO CLUB AWAITS RULES FOR RACES

Those for Lahm Cup Competition Indicate St. Louis Regulations.

Members of the Aero Club are awaiting with much interest the receipt of copies of the rules prepared from the New York headquarters of the Aero Club of America to govern the international balloon races, to be started from St. Louis next October.

The rules lay down qualifications for pilots, to be licensed by the club, and provide that all the balloons entered must be placed at the disposal of the club, even if the aeronaut who enters them is prevented from using them.

The only rules thus far made public in detail are those for the Lahm cup competition. This is to be sailed at different times and from different starting points. The St. Louis races, the chief of which is for the Bennett cup, must start in this city.

WAS FOUND WITH FRACTURED SKULL

Farmer Discovered Unconscious Near East St. Louis Railroad Tracks.

C. P. Fletcher, 35 years old, a wealthy bachelor farmer, living near Centerville Station, is at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from a fractured skull. Since he was brought to the hospital Friday night he has not been able to tell how he received his injuries, and was thought to have been struck by a train.

Sunday friends called at the hopital and told the attendant that Fletcher had about $700 shortly before he was found unconscious beside the Illinois Central Railroad tracks, and it is thought that he was assaulted. The police and Sheriff' force are making an investigation.

RIOT ON ELEVATED TRAIN.

Crowd Forces Return of Fares After Wreck.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A complete tie up to the Union Elevated loop, resulting in the probable death of one man, an incipient riot at least one station for the return of fares paid, and a bad fright for a train load of passengers, was caused last night by the derailment of a Garfield Park train. The loop was tied up for three hours.

The Garfield Park train on the Metropolitan line was leaving the loop when a flange on a car in the middle of the train was broken. The sudden jolting of the cars on the ties frightened the passengers and until the motorman applied the brakes there was almost a panic.

Hundreds of persons on various trains were inconvenienced. The derailment grounded the circuit and until the current was switched on at either side of the stations trains between were left without power and ligh. Finally sufficient power was given to permit the tranis to return to the platform. A half hour had elapsed meanwhile and the passengers upon reaching the platforms were not humorously inclined. A volley of demands for the return of fares greeted the gatekeepers. Finally an order was received from headquarters to return fares to the discommoded passengers.

Thomas Foley, tower tender at Fifth avenue and Van Buren street, while assisting the wrecking crew, lost his balance and fell to the pavement, suffering probably fatal injuries. In the excitement following Foley's accident a train backed into the derailed coaches accidentally, smashing windows, wrecking woodwork and frightening more persons who saw the mishap.

Accused of Diamond Theft.

A warrant was issued Monday against Smith Wright, a telephone operator at the Hamilton Hotel, charging him with the theft of a diamond scroll valued at $400 from Mrs. H. P. Braham. Wright was formerly a bell boy at the Monticello Hotel and it was there that the alleged robbery took place on Nov. 22 last. All of the seven diamonds in the scroll have been recovered by Detectives Cahill and Dotzman. Clarence Fisher, night clerk at the Monticello, is also held in connection with the robbery. He is alleged to have given a key to Wright with which to enter Mrs. Branham's room.

WRECKAGE AT NIAGARA

Great Lake Rises Three Feet in as Many Minutes—Storms Elsewhere.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Two lives have been lost and property damaged to the extent of $2,000,000 in a storm which has swept the city for the past 24 hours. The Niagara frontier is a scene of wreckage and destruction in the wake of the storm.

Miles of docks at the great lumber market at North Tonawanda have been destroyed and millions of feet of lumber have been carried into the river. Lake Erie is higher that it has been for 20 years and has gorged the Niagara River to overflowing, carrying thousands of dollars' worth of property down the stream.

The damage to shipping in Buffalo harbor alone is $1,500,000. Five great lake steamers are aground and 13 others are making brave efforts to ride out the storm. Much damage has been done to homes and buildings.

The gale still rages and no aid can be given the endangered vessels, which the the Hurlburt W. Smith, William Nottingham, J. Q. Riddle, Monroe C. Smith and A. G. Brower.

The gale swept the water front, tearing everything that stood in its path. Docks and wharves were wrecked and carried away, craft broken from their moorings, smashed against bridges, doing serious damage. No casualties have been reported.

Lake Erie rose three feet in as many minutes.

The inner breakwater walls have been pounded until portions of them have broken away. Railroad tracks along the water front are being held down with strings of freight cars.

Railroad service has been badly disarranged. The gale brought with it a blinding snowstorm.

HEAVY STORM SWEEPS JEFFERSONVILLE, IND.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Jan. 21.—The terror in which the people of this city are living hourly expecting disastrous flood news, was increased at 6 o'clock last night by the report that a tornado was imminent. At 7:15 o'clock a terrific wind, rain and electrical storm swept over the place.

The steamer Falls City, lying in the harbor here below the Big Four bridge, was partly torn away from her moorings and swept around with terrific force, crashing against the second pier of the bridge. The frantic ringing of the bell by the watchman caused the impression that the flood gates below here had broken and soon men were running over town spreading this news.

The Falls City was considerably damaged, but the lines from her bow held her in to shore and prevented her being entirely wrecked. The people continued to move today in great numbers. The situation is unimproved and no one knows what to expect next.

ELECTRIC ROADS NEAR NIAGARA WASHED AWAY.

NIAGARA FALLS, Jan. 21.—Water in the Niagara River gorge is at the highest point it has ever been. Nearly two miles of roadbed, tracks and trolley wires of the electric road which runs along the water edge have been washed away and the railroad suffers damage of nearly $200,000. The Three Sisters Islands have been submerged all day, and fears are felt for the safety of the bridges.

The rapids present a wild spectacle.

TROOPS GUARD FIRE RUINS

Negro Uprising Feared at Beaufort, S. C.

BEAUFORT, S. C., Jan. 21.—Murmurs of negroes yesterday caused apprehension of an uprising and the authorities at once sought to procure military protection for the city. Col. W. R. Patterson, in command at Fort Screven, Ga., was asked for a company of regular troops for the preservation of order. The troops arrived last night.

The discontent among the negroes, which it was feared might be fanned into a fury, was caused by the killing of William Bennett, a negro, by a guard early yesterday while the negro was hanging about the ruins of the People's Bank, one of the buildings destroyed by the disastrous fire of Saturday.

RODES DEMANDS SENATE INQUIRY OF HIS OFFICE

Game Warden, Asked to Resign, Tells Senate He Has Done Duty.

WON'T QUIT UNDER FIRE

Declares He Has Lost Money and Once Asked Relief From Governor.

DISCRIMINATION DENIED

Sedalia Official Offers to Turn Over Books for Investigation.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 21.—Following the Senate's demand for his removal, practically the sole topic of conversation among Senators and Representatives, Game Warden Rodes has written a letter to President Pro Tem. McDavid of the Senate, defying the Senate and demanding an investigation of himself and his office. The letter will be read at an executive session of the Senate Tuesday, when the Rodes matter will be given full consideration.

At an executive session last week, Senator McDavid was made a committee of one to notify the Governor that if Rodes' resignation was not called for within 30 days, his office would be abolished. It was reported Saturday that the Governor had demanded Rodes' resignation, and that Rodes had refused to resign. The Governor would not discuss the matter and Rodes denied that such a demand had been made by the Governor.

In his letter, Rodes, who lives in Sedalia, says he has for a long time wanted to resign, but that he will not get out while under fire. He demands that the Senate give him a hearing and that it shall not take action against him without giving him an opportunity to defend himself. Rodes' letter, addressed to McDavid, is as follows:

"Upon reading the papers of the 18th inst. I was much surprised to learn that the Senate, on the previous day in executive session, by resolution, requested my removal from the office of State Game and Fish Warden under the general charge of unfitness to fill the position.

"I know nothing, nor can know nothing, of the cause of the action beyond the scant information the papers contained. I had no prior knowledge, not the slightest intimation of any such intended action, nor was I conscious of any official misconduct which would render such action either advisable or necessary.

Integrity Assailed, He Says.

"I would certainly be untrue to myself, my friends, as well as to the instinct of honor and manhood, to affect indifference toward this action of the Senate. I frankly confess, what I am sure every Senator must realize, that I feel most keenly the position in which I have been placed before the people. If I can clearly and correctly realize the attitude in which I am placed, it is that of one whose personal integrity has been assailed and whose character is brought into question.

"What may have transpired or what may have been charged that would seem to justify this course upon the part of the Senate I cannot know. I can but believe that the senators, as men of honor and fairness, irrespective of party alignment, could have no personal feeling against me, or would intentionally put a stain or blot on my name or character beyond my power to remove.

"I beg to respectfully state that, to the best of my knowledge and ability, I have been and am conducting the Bureau of Game and Fish according to law under my oath of office and enforcing its provisions impartially against every violator of that act, whether individual, firm or corporation, in so far as the agencies at my command have permitted.

"I challenge any man to point to a single instance where the least discrimination or partiality has marked my action. Without reference to rank, wealth or distinction, or any class or set of men, high or low, I have caused to be searched alike the palace car, the clubhouse, the marts of trade and have prosecuted the rich and poor alike in an earnest effort to stop the illegal traffic in the fast-disappearing game of the State.

"I assumed this position with a solemn intention of doing so, well knowing the personal unpopularity the strict discharge of my duty would entail, and, knowing, too, the enmity I would arouse upon the part of those who have grown rich by the commercial vandalism off the wild game of the State, as well as the enmity of those who were in favor of game laws when they were not enforced, or enforced against some other person.

"I am not conscious of any wrongful or improper acts on my part, and I am not only willing, but anxious, to have them thoroughly investigated. I have read in the papers a letter addressed to me from the State Auditor about two items, one of $9 and one of $15, laid before the Senate, but I do not know whether at the time this letter was so furnished the correspondence from me in reply thereto was also read.

"Other things may have been and doubtless were said of me, of which I have no knowledge and consequently am unable to meet or reply to, and I can only repeat the assertion that a most searching examination of my conduct of this department can at the most do no more than show that I may have made some mistakes in judgment.

"In administering the affairs of this bureau, I realize that I have excited many hostilities and animosities in the strict enforcement of the statutes upon the subject, but, having taken an official oath, I could not possibly do otherwise. I know that not only have I offended that class who deal in game as a mere commercial commodity and welcome its indiscriminate slaughter, indifferent as to whether or not it leads to the total extermination of our game, animals and birds, so long as it makes dollars for them, but my execution of the law has also excited the hostility of many good citizens who have no mercenary motives whatever.

Losing Money, He Says.

"This latter class of people are very bitter toward the present game law, which is practically identical with that of many States, and resent the anomalous rule of law that the game belongs to the State alone, and conscientiously regard all the wild game flying through the air, on the surface of the land and under the waters as anybody's who can kill and take it that they and each of them have a perfect right to so kill and take it. In pressing the case, I do not, on the contrary, desire to have the fact that I, under oath enforced a law which I have participated in the enactment of, result in casting a reflection upon me, nor do I, on the other hand, desire that any mistaken official acts of mine shall have an injurious effect on the standing of the law.

"So far as my personal desire to hold the office is concerned, I have to say that, after I had done the organizing work of the department and put it in good running order, the Governor has understood from me that, by reason of the fact that I had to abandon my business and employ a substitute to manage and conduct affairs of commercial importance more remunerative than my salary, I was actually losing money, and in effect was not realizing a dollar for my services from the State and that, therefore I would be glad if he would find a successor to take my place. I have been contemplating resigning, but, in view of the action of the Senate, I do not think I ought to resign now, as such a course would be equivalent to a confession on my part of the charge of the improper conduct of the office.

"Assuring the Senators, through you, that I do not doubt that they thought the information before them was sufficient justification for their action, I desire to say that I was unheard and had no opportunity to be heard, and that I have done nothing whatever in the discharge of my official duty that merits condemnation.

"The effect of the action of the Senate being to put a blot on my reputation, I respectfully ask that that body appoint a committee with all the usual powers requisite, and that such committee be empowered and directed to make a full and searching investigation of my conduct of the Game and Fish Bureau.

"To this end, I will turn over to the committee all the books and papers of my office for their examination here, and give any further assistance in my power elsewhere. I think it proper on my part to transmit to the Governor a copy of this communication.

"I submit now to you and all the senators as gentlemen and men of honor that I ought not to be condemned unheard and denied the privilege accorded to a common criminal, but that every sense of fairness and justice, which animates men of fine feeling, requires that I should be given an opportunity to have removed from my name and reputation the opprobrium cast upon it, if the facts found on examination so demand.

"Asking that you and each of you put yourselves in my place and realize my feelings and consider carefully my rights, and hoping that you will grant my request as herewith presented, I am, very respectfully, J. H. RODES."

Warrant Charges Murder.

A warrant charging Osborne P. Fuller with murder in the first degree in the killing of Michael Ryan at Union Station Jan. 7, was issued Monday. Fuller and Ryan were members of a party of laborers leaving the station when Fuller, according to the police, drew his revolver and shot Ryan five times because Ryan called him a name.

Released for Funeral.

When the funeral of Mrs. Lillian Kindle is held at Alton, Tuesday, her husband, now in Jail for vagrancy, will be released from custody to attend the services. Mrs. Kindle died of dropsy Sunday at the home of her father, William Hudspeth. She is survived by six children. Kindle was sent to jail on complaint of his wife's father, who testified that he would not work to support his family.

ROOSEVELT WINS FIGHT WITH SENATE

President's Right to Dismiss Negro Troops Will Not Be Probed.

REPUBLICANS IN LINE

Even Foraker Agrees Not to Raise Question of Constitutional Power.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—An agreement was reached today by Republican senators on a sub-resolution on the Brownsville question, which is to be introduced by Senator Foraker, and it is asserted it will receive the unanimous vote of the majority party.

It is said that the resolution, in addition to providing for an investigation by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs of the facts connected with the affray at Brownsville, carries a declaration that the committee shall not raise the question as to the President's right to discharge the negro soldiers.

Senator Foraker did not give his consent to the compromise until today, but inasmuch as he is to offer it and it is not inconsistent with the position he has previously taken, he finally agreed to withdraw his objection. He was first given assurances, however, that the resolution would be suported by Senator Lodge and the unanimous strength of the Republicans in the Senate.

It is not certain whether Senator Blackburn will offer an amendment to the new resolution, the amendment he presented to the pending resolution endorsing the President's course. If he does offer it, the agreement by the Republicans would insure its defeat.

POLICEMAN'S CLUB SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Robert Cassidy Was Being Electrocuted When Fitzgerald Appeared.

Robert Cassidy, 29 years old, is at his home, 1008 Armstrong avenue, suffering from burns caused by a live wire Saturday night. The quick action of a policeman saved Cassidy's life.

Cassidy was passing the corner of Twenty-second and Papin street when a telephone wire fell across his back. The wire burned through his clothing and into his back.

Sassidy grasped the wire, and the circuit passed from his arm through his body and his wet shoes to the wet pavement.

Cassidy couldn't let go and would have been electrocuted had not Policeman Fitzgerald of the Central District rushed up and struck the wire out of his hand with his stick.

He was unconscious when released from the wire, and Dr. Schuchat had to work over him half an hour before he was finally revived and taken to his home.

Difficult to Justify the Governor's Words, Says Pall Mall Gazette

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Referring to the withdrawal of the American warships from Kingston, the Pall Mall Gazette today says that the "language employed by Gov. Swettenham would be difficult to justify in almost any circumstances." At the same time the paper says it thinks "it is possible that a praiseworthy desire to do his utmost in the cause of humanity pushed Admiral David beyond the necessities of the case, and led him to encroach too far on the sphere of British authority."

The Gazette assumes that both the Governor and the Admiral were animated by the best motives and expresses the opinion that "the abnormal conditions preclude their conduct being judged by ordinary standards." The paper adds:

"Englishmen certainly do not wish the misunderstanding to be magnified in any sense of pique, and the American public ought to be broad-minded enough to regard it with the same charitable disposition."

AMERICANS ARE ASKED TO LEAVE BY GOVERNOR

sul's assiduous attentions to his family at his country house, the American Consulate needs guarding, in your opinion, although he was present, and it was not guarded an hour ago, I have no objection to your detailing a force for the sole purpose of guarding, but the party must have no firearms and nothing more offensive than clubs or staves for this function.

"I find your working party was this morning helping Mr. Crosswell clean his store. Crosswell was delighted that the work was done without cost. If your Excellency should remain long enough I am sure almost all the private owners would be glad of the services of the navy to save expense.

Fails to See Precedent.

"It is no longer a question of humanity; all the dead died days ago, and the work of giving them burial is merely one of convenience.

"I would be glad to accept delivery of this safe which it is alleged thieves had possession of. The American Vice-Consul has no knowledge of it; the store is close to a sentry post, and the officer of the post professes ignorance of the incident.

"I believe the police surveillance of the city is adequate for the protection of private property. I may remind your Excellency that not long ago it was discovered that thieves had lodged in and pillaged the residence of some New York millionaire during his absence in the summer, but this would not have justified a British Admiral landing an armed party and assisting the New York police.

"I have the honor to be, with profound gratitude and the highest respect, your obedient servant,

"ALEXANDER SWETTENHAM.

"Governor."

Gov. Swettenham and the local medical men were greatly opposed to the American hospital, insisting that there was no necessity for it, as all the wounded had already been attended to. Surgeon Ames said the local medical men were very ready to accept medical supplies, but wished no American interference with the wounded. Consequently, there was much suffering, which the American officers, in the name of humanity, were eager to relieve.

A party of American sailors worked at repairing the hospital building to the last moment, when they hauled down their flag, the Jesuits taking charge, and returned to their ships, the Yankton sailing at 1 o'clock, followed by the battleships, at 4.

Mild earth shocks continue intermittently, yet the people are growing calmer. Laborers clearing away the wreckage work cheerfully, and bodies which are being discovered are burned. The number of known dead is now more than six hundred.

Reports from the north side of the island indicate that a tidal wave followed the earthquake Monday, and that the inrush of waters destroyed wharves and buildings.

At Orchorio the water receded so far that the sea bottom was visible for nearly a mile from shore. At Jamaica Bay the land sank several inches. Steel bridges were twisted in some places and the roadways were broken. Depots have been established which are selling food at reasonable prices.

Thousands are going inland, thus relieving the congestion in the city parks. English and American visitors are leaving at every opportunity. The Government offices have reopened in temporary quarters. There is great need for lumber to build or repair dwellings. The work of clearing the streets and recovering bodies is proceeding rapidly. There have been a few attempts at looting, but they have been confined mainly to rum shops and provision stores. An admirable example has been set by the higher officials and their wives, who are working unwearingly to relieve the distressed and nurse the wounded.

Fully one thousand persons have been maimed for life, their legs or arms having been amputated.

Nothing has been done yet toward rebuilding the wrecked houses, or even to repair the damaged residences in the northern and eastern parts of the city and in the suburb of St. Andrew. The vaults of the Colonial and Nova Scotia banks have been opened by dynamite, and the managers hope to resume business soon.

The report that the Hamburg-American line steamer Prinz Eitel Freidrich is aground is incorrect. She arrived here safely from Colombia. The Prinz Waldemar of the same line, is still hard aground at Plum Point Lighthouse, within a stone's throw of the steamer Victoria Luise.

PATIENTS WEPT, ASKED AMERICANS TO STAY.

GUANTANAMO, Cuba, Jan. 21.—The United States battleships Missouri and Indiana and gunboat Yankton have arrived from Kingston. It was stated today that Gov. Swettenham held up Saturday night's dispatches from Kingston regarding his letter to Rear Admiral Davis requesting him to re-embark the American marines who had been landed to assist in the relief work ashore.

Just previous to the departure of the American warships, the Mayor and City Council of Kingston sent a petition to the Admiral begging him to remain, and the Relief Committee, headed by Archbishop Hubbull, threatened to resign. When the American surgeons left the hospital the patients wept and begged them and the American warships to stay, and the Red Cross nurses declared that the Governor's action in causing the Americans to withdraw was nothing short of criminal.

KINGSTON COUNCIL OPPOSED GOVERNOR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A special dispatch to the Times from Kingston says that Gov. Swettenham, in addition to refusing aid from Rear Admiral Davis, has declined an offer sent by the War Department of the United States to extend immediately to Kingston 10,000 rations, which were intended for troops in Cuba, and would have been diverted here.

As soon as it became known what had been done by Gov. Swettenham and that the American ships, in consequence, were to leave, an emergency meeting of the City Council was called. The discussion showed that the Governor's attitude toward the Americans did not meet with the approval of these officials, and a letter to Admiral Davis was drafted and adopted, in which the action of Sir Alexander Swettenham was wholly disapproved, and the American Government and officers were warmly thanked for the thoughtful, effective and timely aid they had given in the emergency. This letter was immediately dispatched.

Admiral Davis was also asked to remain, in spite of the unfortunate incident. The request was dispatched to him, and he made reply, in which he said that there was no misunderstanding with the Jamaican authorities, but he added significantly in reply to the request to them:

"As a foreign naval officer, I am bound to respect the wishes of the constituted authority of Jamaica."

DAVIS A DIPLOMAT; SWETTENHAM VETERAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis, whose offer of assistance to the earthquake sufferers was refused by Gov. Swettenham of Kingston, received the surrender of the Port of Ponce when he was in command of the Dixie. His record in the American navy was a continuous succession of diplomatic triumphs.

He is second in command of the North Atlantic squadron. His title as "Grand Commander of the Order of Isabella," was conferred by Spain in recognition of his services as personal conductor, as a representative of this Government, of the Infanta Eulalia, when she visited this country in 1893 as Spain's representative to the Columbian Exposition.

Admiral Davis is father-in-law of Senator Lodge and a friend of the President, who formed his acquaintance while Mr. Roosevelt was a member of the Civil Service Commission and living in Washington.

Rear Admiral Davis was selected as the American member of the international commission which met in Paris two years ago, to inquire into the firing by Russia's Baltic fleet on the British fishing trawlers. Davis served as superintendent of the naval observatory at Washington for five years and has been on many ships of the navy through his various grades.

Sir James Alexander Swettenham, K. C. M. G., Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica, has been in the colonial service of Great Britain for 40 years. He is 61 years old, the son of J. O. Swettenham of Belper Lodge, Derby. After graduating at Cambridge, he entered the Ceylon service for 15 years.

He was Auditor-General of the Island of Cyprus from 1884 to 1891 and Auditor-General of Ceylon from 1891 to 1895. Then he was made Colonial Secretary at Singapore, and from 1898 to 1900 was Acting Governor of the Straits Settlements. Then he went to British Guinea as Governor and Commander-in-Chief, where he was kept until 1904. Sir Alexander got his decoration and his knighthood for colonial service, and was then sent to Jamaica, where he arrived in the fall of 1904.

Gov. Swettenham came in conflict with the United States officials last October, when he refused to permit laborers to leave Jamaica to work on the Panama Canal, unless certain demands made by him were conceded. He refused to permit the recruiting of laborers unless 5 shillings a head were paid to the island government for the laborers and also the sum of $3500 for the agent's licenses. After considerable discussion the demand was granted. The Governor then insisted that the United States guarantee to compensate the laborers for any damage or injury they might suffer during their employment on the canal. This demand was positively refused.

THIRD WIFE WINS SUIT.

Mrs. Caroline Chadeayne of 6135 Ridge avenue was granted $15 a week in her maintenance suit in the Circuit Court at Clayton Monday against Charles A. Chadeayne, a hatter at 1617 Market street. She testified that he went to lodge one night about two months after their wedding and never returned. She was also given $170 for the time between the filing of the suit and the order of the court. Chadeayne did not contest the suit.

Mrs. Chadeayne said that each entered their third matrimonial venture when she became Mrs. Chadeayne July 16 last. She had been divorced from P. B. Matthews May 15. She said Chadeayne had been divorced twice. She was keeping a boarding house at 101 Channing avenue when Chadeayne married her.

She said they lived happily except for one little quarrel, which they made up, but that Chadeayne said he was going to lodge one night and never came back. She said he clears $100 a week from his business and has been giving her $5 a week since their separation.

COFFEE GROWERS COMPLAIN

Say Law Only Allows Quotations for Higher Brands.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 21.—A complaint regarding the manner in which the coffee convention was being enforced was made to the President Saturday by a committee of coffee growers. They stated that the new law allowed only the quotation of higher brands of coffee, while inferior ones remained without sale. The President replied that the law could only be modified by act of Congress.

DR. J. E. ENNIS

Of Atlanta, Ga., Addresses the People of St. Louis on a Matter of Health.

"To Whom It May Concern: Of late there has been a good deal of discussion in regard to advertised medicines, their value and power to cure.

"I want to say to the people of St. Louis that I believe the most valuable cod liver oil preparation, the best body-builder, health restorer and strength creator known to medicine today is Vinol.

"While Vinol does not contain the system-clogging oil of old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions, it actually does contain all the curative medicinal principles of the cod's liver in a highly concentrated form, with tonic iron added, and it is delicious to take.

"I advise Vinol in my practice, and find it has no equal for healing coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and sore lungs.

"I have used Vinol in many cases of indigestion, mal-assimilation, and for patients who were anaemic and run-down with splendid results. I have also found Vinol to be a boon to the aged.

"I believe Vinol to be well worthy of any honest physician's endorsement."

We sell Vinol to the people of St. Louis on an offer to refund money if it fails to benefit. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.

NOTE.—While we are sole agents for Vinol in St. Louis, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

KILLED BY A FALL FROM STREET CAR

John Miller Died at City Hospital, Following Strange Accident.

SKULL WAS FRACTURED

He Slipped From Step and Struck His Head on Icy Pavement.

John Miller of 6309 Columbia avenue died at the City Hospital from injuries received in falling from a westbound Tower Grove car at Columbia avenue and Old Manchester road.

He was attempting to alight from a car at that point at 11:30 p. m. Sunday, when he slipped from the step and fell to the street. The back of his head struck the frozen ground. According to a statement made by Conductor L. Hellstone to the police, the car was not in motion. There were no other passengers aboard and the conductor was the only witness.

Hellstone says that Miller did not seem to be greatly injured, and that he walked to the office of Dr. Iralson, 6200 Columbia avenue, where he received emergency treatment. The physician advised him to go to a hospital.

Miller walked from the doctor's office to the Clifton Heights Police Station, five blocks east, and asked that an ambulance be called. The City Hospital records show that Miller was not received there until 3:15 a. m. The distance and bad streets are given as the causes for the delay.

At the hospital it was at once seen that Miller's condition was extremely serious. There was a compound fracture of the skull at the base of the brain.

Miller soon lapsed into unconsciousness, and remained in that condition until he died, at 6:45 a. m. Monday.

He told the hospital authorities that he came to St. Louis from Wisconsin three years ago and that he has no relatives here. His sister, Mrs. Mary Truax, lives at Alice, Neb.

The World is Round.

When Galileo repeatedly declared that the world is round in spite of threats and persecutions, he proved himself a man of strong convictions which nothing could shake. In the year 1905 Dr. Burkhardt's Vegetable Compound, which was taken in 13,500,000 cases with the utmost success as to results, established in the minds of the afflicted a conviction as to its merits, which nothing will be able to undermine. This famous remedy has proven a revelation in two hemispheres by upsetting old theories. It has the distinctive mission to perform of thoroughly cleansing the body of every trace of disease, thereby producing a reorganization of the entire system. It is recommended for the cure of ailments with the following symptoms: Pain in the back, side and under the shoulder blades, sour, bloated stomach, coated tongue, sleeplessness, poor appetite, want of memory, tired feeling in the morning, nervousness, headaches and constipation. 30 days' treatment, 25c. "Bud Dozier" Kicks Up Star Dust, Hits Saturn

BY WILLIE ASCEND,
The Balloon Reporter.
By Wireless Telephone to the Post-Dispatch.

ABOARD THE "BUD DOZIER," in Space, Jan. 21.

We struck Saturn head-on and smashed the ring into a million million pieces. It was, at last, a realization of the old philosophical hypothesis of an irresistible force (the "Bud Dozier") meeting an immovable body (the rings of Saturn). The "Bud Dozier" carried off the honors.

You remember when I called you up last we had just been the ball in a stupendous game of ping pong, played by the Sun, on the one hand, and the vast forces of magnetism in a state of flux, on the other. We escaped the Sun, because the Sun won the ping pong game.

The magnetic current which bore us along through the ether at the rate of 1,000,000 miles an hour, literally turned tail and ran like a scared cat away from the Sun, straight toward Saturn.

Machinist Highball was frightened for the first time. Poor fellow! His hair stood on end and the ether rushing through it produced a whistling sound. This was rather hard on Louie, but the sound was in perfect harmony with the vast orchestra of the spheres, and really added a pleasant note to this sublime concert. We complimented the Machinist on his adaptability as an Aeolian harp, but his face took on a pained expression, so we desisted.

Music on a Pompadour.

He seemed sensitive about the matter at first, but later, when his nerves grew quieter and his fears passed away, he consented to having his hair pompadoured, so that the soft, flute-like notes arising therefrom would not be lost to our concert.

I might tell you just here that the voice of Venus is a divine soprano. That planet we regard as the prima donna of the heavenly bodies.

Prof. Starr has been busily engaged taking phonographic records of the music of the spheres. He says that on his return to Chicago he will write a book advancing the theory that syncopated music, such as is vulgarly called "ragtime," originated among the stars.

Capt. Saturday took out our binoculars and swept the horizon of the infinite.

"See yon bright world ahead," said he to us, "that is Saturn. I can see the ring, distinctly."

"Thank my lucky star for that!" cried Machinist Highball, "if they have a ring on Saturn why they ain't no lid. A lid won't fit over a ring, will it? A lid's always on the square. Hurrah for Saturn!"

Fun Kicking Star Dust.

Just at this point we passed through a vast space filled with star dust. The "Bud Dozier" stirred up big clouds of this and we all cheered. This phenomenon was a delightful diversion. You remember we left St. Louis after the rains set in and this was the first dust we had encountered in weeks. It got into our eyes and nostrils, made the tears come and choked us. But what mattered that! It was real, dry dust like they have in St. Louis' streets in times of drought. It certainly tasted and felt good.

When we emerged from this dust area, Machinist Highball not only smacked his lips after the first breath of the Rhine wine ether, but he also licked his chops.

"I'd like to have a taste of dust just before each breath," he said enthusiastically.

Meantime we were drawing nigh to Saturn. That superb planet, with the great ring around it, and emitting delicious strains of celestial music, resembled a gigantic merry-go-round. Machinist Highball, who had been breathing very often since leaving the star dust behind, remarked in thick tones as he saw and heard Saturn:

"Yesh, I allers—hic—did like ter—hic—go t' Coney Island."

Machinist Under Ice Box.

For fear he might grow troublesome we laid him gently on the floor of the car and turned the icebox over on him to pin him down.

Apparently there were no forces emanating from Saturn to prevent the "Bud Dozier's" crashing into the planet as there had been in the case of the sun. We were traveling faster than light itself—as fast as thought—and were aimed directly at the splendid ring of Saturn.

The planet was airily discoursing the strains of that popular song, "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie!" It moved in time to the music and the main body of the planet and the ring actually seemed to hold each other in the embrace of a waltz. We, too, felt like waltzing and Capt. Saturday had a faraway, romantic look in his eagle eye.

But our soft thoughts born of the delicious music soon were to give way to a terror that came near dethroning our reason.

As we neared Saturn the "Bud Dozier" seemed to gain new momentum, like a race horse making for the wire under the whip in a driving finish. The vessel leaped forward through the ether like a thing alive, with every joint creaking and grinding as though they were muscles settling themselves for a struggle. Then the crash came!

Saturn's Ring Smashed.

The nose of the "Bud Dozier" struck the rim of Saturn with a force equal to that of a 16-inch shell raised to the millionth power. It would have done Roosevelt good to see it. That terrific impact was the most strenuous thing that has happened since creation.

There was a sudden, ominous, awful flash and crackling. Then a roar and concussion that shook planets millions of leagues distant. The ring of Saturn had exploded and as I said in the beginning, had broken into millions and millions of pieces.

The "Bud Dozier" seemed to hesitate for an instant and then surged in through a fiery shower of ring fragments. We struck the side of a mountain, the nose of the "Bud Dozier" being plunged into a crevice between two mighty layers of granite.

When we came to our senses and began to look around we saw a still more wonderful thing. The fragments of the ring, yielding to the force of the planet's gravity, were reassembling in long ranks, moving with a slight undulating motion, in time to the planet's music, which had continued undisturbed save for a slight discord at the instant we struck the ring.

Wouldn't Mind Blow-Up of Universe.

So, we are safe again after another marvelous and hairbreadth escape. But we are getting calloused. I doubt seriously if I would even so much as start should the universe blow up.

By the way, I promised to tell you what the canals on Mars are for—but they are calling me now to help lift the icebox off poor Louie, whom the shock sobered. Never mind, I'll tell you about the canals when I call you up next time.

DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR GLOWING RUBY

Mrs. C. P. Thurston Mysteriously Loses Beautiful Gem, Diamond Surrounded.

A flawless pigeon-blood ruby of unusual size, set in a ring with eight diamonds, is lost or stolen, and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Thurston of 3700 Delmar boulevard, newcomers in St. Louis, are much perturbed. They say it disappeared while they were stopping at the Planters, and they first missed it Sunday. They value the ring at $1200.

Mrs. Thurston considers it possible that the ring slid from the pillow slip, into which she thrust it, and was found by a servant, or that it was taken to laundry in the slip. Chief Desmond has assigned several detectives to the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston reached St. Louis from San Francisco Saturday afternoon. They had arranged to make their home at the Delmar boulevard address, but did not at once go to it. They intend to live in St. Louis.

After dinner Saturday evening Mrs. Thurston put her jewels, with the exception of the ruby, into a chamois bag and put the bag under her pillow. Later in the evening, she says, she took off the ring, but decided it was too much trouble to untie the bag and place it with the other jewelry, so just thrust it into the slip of the pillow.

Mrs. Thurston decided to wear the ring after dinner Sunday, and discovered that it was missing. The chamois bag had not been opened. She made a thorough search of the room, but was unable to find the ruby. The pillow slip had been taken in the morning to the laundry, and she thinks it possible that the ring may have gone with it. She also fancies she heard something drop from the pillow during the evening, and believes a servant at the hotel may have found the ring.

Pigeon-blood rubies are so called from the rare tint, somewhat deeper and richer than the usual carmine or the stone. They are more valuable than the ordinary ruby, and when large are often costlier than first-water diamonds of the same size.

STEWART FUNERAL OCCURS TUESDAY

Former Ball Player and Amateur Boxer Dies Very Suddenly.

The funeral of Joseph E. Stewart, who died Saturday, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. from the home of his father-in-law, Judge J. T. Stewart, 2968 Morgan street. Services will be held at the Rock Church, Grand and Finney avenues, and burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Stewart was for years considered one of the best amateur baseball players in St. Louis. An amateur boxer of great skill, he won a number of trophies not so many years ago. He played handball and took other exercise almost daily up to the time of his death.

Malarial fever, which was followed by blood poison from a slight scratch, was the cause of his death. Mr. Stewart was 39 years of age.

Stewart is survived by a wife and one daughter, 4 years of age. Mr. Stewart was engaged in the restaurant business. The news of Mr. Stewart's death came as a great shock to his many friends. His funeral will be attended by the largest body of men interested in amateur and professional sport that has probably ever paid honor to a man interested in sport before.

INSURGENT MOVE IN LEGISTATURE WORRYING FOLK

His Measures Threatened With Defeat, Governor Is on Defensive.

HOUSE IS AGAINST HIM

Senatorial Primary Bill, Urged by Stone Men, May Be Vetoed.

POLITICIANS DISTRUSTED

Executive Wanted to Write Introduction to Interviews He Gave.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 21.—For the first time since he loomed on the political horizon as the most influential man in the Democratic party of Missouri, Gov. Folk is beginning to show signs of nervousness.

With a Democratic majority in both houses of the Legislature, the Governor is confronted by a Filipino movement that threatens to defeat every measure put forward as a recommendation of the administration. Two weeks ago the Folk dictum was undisputed. It implied prestige and power.

Today the situation is just the reverse. The chief executive is on the defensive. At the first opportunity the Senate gave the administration a black eye when the Committee on Judiciary reported unfavorably the bill to invest the Governor with power to oust negligent county officials.

Next, the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee of the same body swung into the ranks of the opposition by unanimously disapproving the Governor's proposition to punish by fine and imprisonment the paid agent of any corporation who sought to discuss legislation with the members.

It has been supposed the administration controlled the House of Representatives. The Republicans asserted themselves through Representative Hill of Cutler County.

"We are against nearly everything Folk wants," said Hill.

Politicians asked: "How about the Democratic members?" The Democrats answered at their House caucus last Wednesday night, when they tore the Governor's primary bill into shreds.

Primary Bill Altered.

Led by Simmons of Shelby County, Crossley of Johnson and other well-known Democratic leaders, who are now committed to the anti-Folk faction, the House Democrats agreed on a primary bill providing for the election of United States senators at the general election. Gov. Folk says he will not discuss that bill, but that if it should be adopted he will pass judgment on it when it is submitted to him for signature.

The Governor's critics think they know that means.

If they read his mind aright, the Governor will place his veto on the primary bill, which the followers are now urging. To express the matter differently, there will be no primary law passed by this Assembly.

It was the intention of the Folk lieutenants to whip into line at a caucus the recalcitrant Democrats objecting to the anti-lobby bill, but this scheme was hastily abandoned once it was realized that the tide of opposition could not be checked by a partisan mobilization. If an anti-labby bill is adopted it will not resemble the one suggested by Gov. Folk.

The State excise bill, which the Governor considers of paramount importance, will be consigned to an early grave. It probably won't command even a respectable following in the Senate. The House of Representatives may accord it better treatment, but even there it cannot hope to muster a constitutional majority.

Annoyed by the criticism of his enemies, Gov. Folk is not the placid, unperturbed leader that he was when he entered upon his gubernatrorial duties two years ago.

Increasing official responsibilities, accentuated by uncompromising hostility among the members of his party, have effected a marked change in the executive's demeanor. Pronounced wrinkles about his forehead, that seem to form a perpetual frown, show that he has passed anxious days since the Assembly entered upon its work.

What could have been more crushing to his official pride, ask the politicians, than the action of the Senate in deliberately requesting the Governor to remove his State Game and Fish Warden, Joe Rodes? Rodes is in nowise responsible to the Senate, but the Senate has decided that Rodes must go or the game law will be repealed. With charges flying thick about him, Rodes refuses to get out until the charges have been fully investigated. Gov. Folk has done nothing thus far to satisfy the Senate's demands or to assure the Game Warden what action, if any, he will take against him.

Requests to Correspondents.

The enemies of Folk accomplished their ends when they put before the public the charge, which has not been denied, that State Insurance Superintendent Vandiver, in the 1904 campaign, collected from John H. Carroll, attorney of the Burlington Railroad Co., the sum of $5500 as a campaign subscription. This disclosure worried Folk, the politicians say, but Mr. Vandiver was not required to explain whether the charge was true or not.

As a result of these attacks the Governor has become distrustful of the politicians. And the politicians are equally chilly towards the Governor. Each night Gov. Folk spends about an hour in the lobby of the Madison House.

Only recently he requested the newspaper correspondents assembled at the capital to permit him to write the introductory paragraph to interviews with him sent out from Jefferson City.

"A great deal depends," said the Governor, "on how an interview is edited on introduced, and in order to have my views set before the public in an unmistakable light, I should like to write the introductory that precedes them."

This unusual request was, of course, denied, but it did not fail to emphasize the impression that the Governor is uneasy about everything in the way of publicity relating to his administration or the State Legislature.

MORE BREAD FOR NICKEL, PROMISE

Seven Big Bakeries About to Enter Combine Declare Public Will Benefit.

Under an agreement signed by seven of the eight largest bakeries in St. Louis, a $3,000,000 bread merger is being developed and is expected to be completed Feb. 15, when the seven bakeries will be combined as the American Bakery Co. Adolph Boetfier is said to be slated for the presidency of the new company. The McKinney Bread Co. is the only big bakery not in it.

The companies in the proposed combination are the Welle-Boettler Bakery Co., Heydt Bakery Co., Freund Bros. Bread Co., Hauck-Hoerr Bakery Co., Home Bakery Co., St. Louis Bakery Co. and the Condon Bakery Co.

John E. McKinney, president of the McKinney Bread Co., says he can see no benefit to be derived from entering the combine. He says he prefers to keep his business independent.

Men interested in the combine say it is not being organized to crush coopetition, but for common benefit. They say the public will derive benefit from the merger, too. They say a larger loaf will be sold at the old price.

Preferred stock will be issued by the new company to the amount of $1,000,000 and common to the amount of $2,000,000. The bakeries merged in the combination will be operated as plants of the company and not as subsidiary companies.

DEFENDED OLD MAN.

George Shea Stabbed in Trying to Stop Fight.

George Shea, 20 years old, of 1209 North Fifteenth street, is at the City Hospital with a stab wound in his abdomen received while defending Samuel Brooks, an aged clerk at the Cozy House, 817 North Sixth street. The police are holding Henry Metzger, alias Frank Jones, 21 years old, who was identified by Shea as his assailant. Shea's condition is serious.

He says that Metzger proposed to him to rob the night clerk. He refused. Later, while the night clerk started to eject Metzger from the place, Metzger attacked Brooks with a knife. Shea stepped in between and was stabbed. Metzger started again after Brooks, who knocked him down with a "billy." Metzger ran from the hotel, but was captured at Sixth and St. Charles streets.

DR. DORCHESTER GOING.

Minneapolis Minister Called to Lindell Avenue Church.

Rev. Dr. F. L. Thompson, pastor of the Hennepin Methodist Church of Minneapolis, has been called to the pastorate of the Lindell Avenue Methodist Church to succeed Rev. Dr. L. H. Dorchester, who has expressed his desire to be transferred to another city. It is not known whether Dr. Thompson will accept. He has given the church to understand that he will not leave his present charge unless released by his official board.

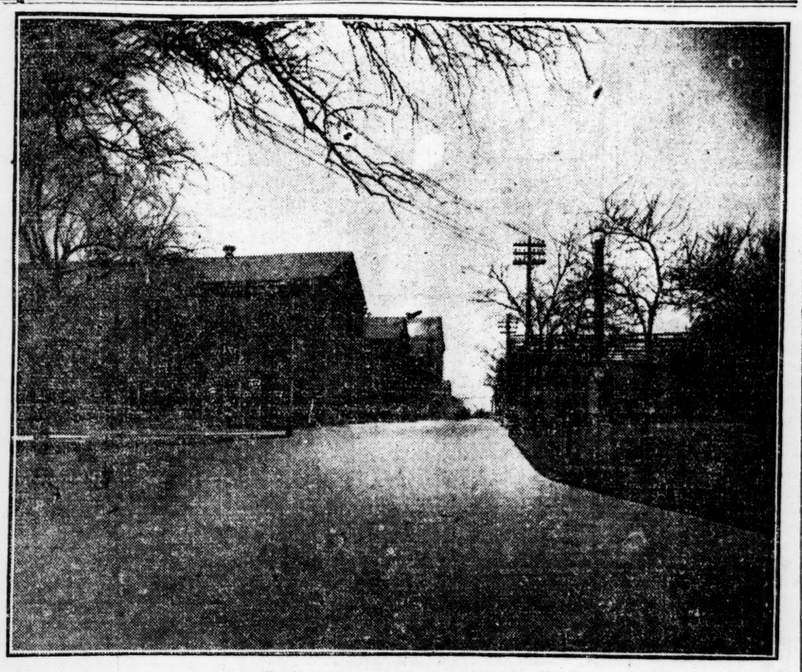

Dr. Dorchester has been pastor of the Lindell Avenue church for four years. He will be assigned to a new pastorate at the meeting of the St. Louis Annual Conference at Clinton, March 20.

STREET IN NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Wood Pavements for Easy Traction.

When wood block pavement was first introduced into this country, about 1900, as a pavement for streets carrying heavy traffic, the United States Government was among the very first to see its possibilities.

Uncle Sam requires a good deal of pavements from year to year in his forts and navy yards. In the Brooklyn Navy Yard alone there are several miles of well-kept paved streets laid out like a miniature city and carrying a heavy trucking traffic. Over these streets loads of immense weight are sometimes taken, such as big plates and armor cases, steel castings and other ponderous implements which go to the making of a warship.

Of course these streets are not crowded with vehicles, and, in fact, vehicles are rare, but the enormous weight of some of the trucks that do pass over them makes a solid and durable pavement very essential.

In the above photograph is shown one of the streets of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which runs from the main gate through to the gigantic foundries which make this yard one of the greatest manufacturing plants in the world.

The pavement is of wooden blocks laid in concrete, and it has been found that this pavement stands traffic better than stone or any of the materials which are used on the ordinary city street. The wooden blocks, which are laid and packed in tightly so that they cannot splinter or split, resist the pressure of great weights better than stone, and also make easier traction, so that less motive power is required—an important consideration where the weights are very heavy.

The Boston Navy Yard also made considerable use of this pavement in important places. The use of wood pavement is in line with the characteristic policy of the Government, which, having unlimited capital, is unhampered by questions of expediency and can well afford to lay pavements of great durability, despite the first cost. These streets are paved for the next generation as well as for this, and it is expected that they will be in splendid condition 30 years or more from now without requiring attention or repairs in the meanwhile.

Pavements almost identical with these have been used for many years in European cities, and the more important capitals, such as Berlin, London and Paris, make very extensive use of them. In Europe wood pavements are very much more expensive than in this country, on account of the high price of lumber, and many of the streets of London are paved with wood which has been brought all the way from Australia.

The wood used in the pavement shown above is ordinary pine, selected for its quality and treated chemically to prevent decay. The process of treatment involves baking in an oven in such a way that all moisture is completed eliminated. A mixture of rosin and a coal tar disinfectant preservative is then soaked into the blocks under great heat. The wood, after it has gone through this treatment, is as inert to the influence of moisture or decay as stone itself. One of the specifications commonly insisted upon for such pavement is that the blocks will not gain over 3 per cent in weight after being immersed in water for a period of 24 hours.

A feature of the pavement which appeals most to the interest of the layman is that it is very quiet, and it is coming into common use for such places as the neighborhood of hospitals, schools, hotels and office buildings where traffic is heavy and noisy, or where the clatter of vehicles affects large numbers of people. On a street where this pavement is used the heaviest traffic cannot drown the voices of pedestrians on the adjoining sidewalks, and the ceaseless din so characteristic of our cities is noticeable by its absence.

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER. Published by The Pulitzer Publishing Co., 210-212 N. Broadway.

THE LOBBY MENACE.

Sensitive members of the State Legislature have less reason to fear suspicion of acknowledged weakness, if the lobby is banished from Jefferson City, than to fear scandalous influence of the lobby on the legislative work of the session.

Jefferson City is full of the vultures of the lobby; notorious lobbyists, men whoses names are synonymous with corrupt political legislative influence are reinforced by fresh recruits from different parts of the State. Every man who is believed to have a pull with a legislator and who can be induced to use his pull in behalf of special interests, is at the State Capitol for that purpose. The passing of the pass is a sham. The regular ticket is substituted for the pass. Every citizen knows what the lobbyists are in Jefferson City for. Every legislator knows it. They are there to stop reform legislation touching big special interests and corporate abuses. They are there to prevent legislation in the interest of the people against the illegitimate methods and the oppressive charges of the railroads and the trusts. They are there to protect the plunderbund from honest legislation.

The situation is scandalous and menacing. It is as bad from the standpoint of possibilities as in the worst days of lobby domination. If the lobbyists remain in Jefferson City, if they are not driven out or frozen out, it will be because they find opportunities for vicious work.

The people are watching this State legislation with the keenness born of a knowledge of the methods by which they have been betrayed in the past. They will not stand another betrayal.

At $12,000 a year the Cabinet stumpers will feel more like doing their spellbinding stunts in the political campaigns.

MISS GRASSBOUND'S CONVERSION.

Miss Ellen Terry, who is on her way to this country for a tour in "Capt. Brassbound's Conversion," announced upon setting out from England that she would not leave the "civilized parts of the states."

She will not venture into the tall grass, but will stick to the conventional circuit, play to the conventional small audiences and small receipts and depart in the spring with the conventional complaint of inappreciation. To paraphrase the title of her Shaw play, Miss Grassbound's conversion will not occur this trip. She will come and go without having learned that the States of her early tours with Sir Henry Irving and the States of today are as unlike as night and day.

Unlike Mme. Bernhardt, who stormed the Llano Estacado with a circus tent and found thousands following the true drama where hundreds follow it in the East, she does not know the possibilities of Texas. Unlike Mr. Richard Mansfield, who would strike the country east of the Alleghenies from the map before he would give up the great Western clientele which follows him unto the heights of Shakspeare, Ibsen and Moliere, she does not know that it was the devotion of the "uncivilized parts" to the better drama which saved it in the now passing musical crisis. Unlike Mrs. Fiske, who had to come to St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco and Spokane to get the sinews of war with which to fight the art-strangling theatrical trust in New York, she does not know where love of the theater and ready money for its perpetuation are always unfailing. Unlike Miss Julia Marlowe and Mr. E. H. Sothern, who have to stay somewhere west of Philadelphia most of the time to find appreciation of their desire to do the classics, she does not know her States at all.

Miss Grassbound's conversion is much to be desired. She is a fine actress whom Texas, Butte and the other "uncivilized parts" would appreciate and enrich to the extent of precluding forever any necessity for her to play to any more half houses in England and the East.

There are days together when Pittsburg is in the darkness of night. Doubtless Pittsburg has a full force of smoke inspectors.

FLOODS AND PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY.

The recurrence of the local flood alarms may remind us of the peculiar physical conditions which render an annual high water hereabouts almost as punctual as the clock stars.

The two greatest rivers of North America converge 15 miles above St. Louis, and it is a peculiarity of the meteorology of the upper Mississippi Valley that rains sufficiently heavy to make either river rise to any great extent are almost invariably so general as to occasion a flood in both. The result is that the single channel into which both discharge is inadequate. Three rivers combine to cause the floods of the Nile, but the combined volume of all three is not equal to the individual volume which either the Missouri or the Mississippi contributes to one of these annual floods passing St. Louis. What a flood Egypt would have if the Nile were twice as large as it is!

The chief factor in our Mississippi Valley floods is the Missouri River. It contributes to the joint river a greater volume than the Mississippi, and except for the perilous Yang-tse-Kiang River of China, where tens of thousands of lives are lost in the great floods in almost every decade, there is not, perhaps, in the world another river so ugly and swift as the Missouri when it is raging. It has been known to attain the terrific velocity of 13 miles an hour, which is four times the normal velocity of the Mississippi and fully three times as fast as the Mississippi ever runs, either above or below its junction with the Missouri. The Amazon is perhaps the only other river upon the Western Hemisphere draining a larger district than the Missouri. Fortunately for the lower valleys in flood season, much of this area is either arid or partially arid, so the Missouri can not draw upon its whole watershed when it is high.

If it could do that, our annual floods would be terribly destructive. Some idea of the possibilities may be gained in Prof. Wright's work on the floods in the Missouri when the glaciers were melting, a record without parallel in the world. In the lower valley, between St. Louis and Kansas City it was subject to rises of 200 feet, 250,000 square miles of the glaciated region depending upon this single outlet for drainage. He estimates that in the years when the ice was melting 10 feet per annum, the Missouri was handling 500 cubic miles of water between April and November, whereas its total annual flow today is but 28 cubic miles. In these days the Missouri can attain a flood height of 36 feet above low water mark, which is but a sixth part of what it could do when its entire watershed was abundantly watered.

The condition of the Four Courts Building has reached a point where prompt and effective action should be taken to avert any possibility of disaster and to allay the fears of the public officials employed in the building and of the persons who are compelled to enter it. The city authorities should assure the safety of the building or remove the courts and officers to other quarters. The possibilities of disaster if the building should collapse are appalling, and the responsibility of the city is direct.

A WRECKED EXHIBITION.

The Senate debate on the Brownsville riot is a wretched exhibition of moral imbecility. There is no honesty in it and no common sense. It is controlled on both sides by an ulterior purpose which prevents anything in it from being genuine or reasonable.

Even the attack made on the President is a false pretense. He was far enough wrong in not focussing his whole effort on the attempt to bring the actual criminals to justice. As far as he is concerned, they have been allowed to escape wholly. A grave crime against both the United States Government and the State of Texas goes unpunished.

That blunder is bad enough, but it was not both bad and vicious. Nothing could be more vicious in spirit than what both sides in the Senate are doing in seeming to oppose each other, on a false pretense of attacking or defending the President.

High ex-protectionists and trust representatives on one side want a "race issue" in the South to put the Southern States out of national politics and confine them to that "local issue," with trouble enough at home to keep them busy.

Men of the Tillman type at the South want a race issue to keep themselves in politics when nothing else could do it. They have had their Appomattox on every real issue and they are the "paroled prisoners" of those who profit by every national abuse.

The one thing that appears for the education of the country out of this miserable exhibition of deceit, is that it really pivots on "our Colonial policies," and that the question of the nullification of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments at home, turns on their nullification under the "Colonial system" abroad, where neither the Constitution, justice nor freedom "follow the flag."

The farmers of Greene and Webster counties will build 25 miles of macadam road. At last Missouri is beginning to get out of the mud.

CHANGING IDEALS.

A plebiscite conducted by a Paris newspaper on the question of the relative importance of the great Frenchmen of the past century indicates a change in the national ideal.

Over 15,000,000 votes were cast, so that we are warranted in considering the result as representing average opinion.

Pasteur and Victor Hugo head the list—one a man of science, the other a man of letters. Gambetta, a statesman, comes third, and Napoleon, the embodiment of the idea of militarism and force, is relegated to fourth place. Curie, the discoverer of radium is seventh, Zola thirteenth and Sarah Bernhardt sixteenth.

The interesting fact is the entire absence from the first 15 places of all military men except the great Napoleon. But he was so unique as a world force that we may well believe his character as a soldier played a subordinate part. Possibly his permanent work as a statesman and lawgiver influenced many voters.

The French have always been considered devotees of glory. To that they have more than once sacrificed their best interests and national well-being. But if this plebiscite correctly reflects French sentiment, their views are more sober, sane and healthy, and if the French are turning away from the pomp and baubles of militarism, what must be going on in the minds of the more staid peoples of German and English stock? This vote may have more significance for the world than a dozen presidential messages begging for more battleships and army corps.

When Senator Foraker "scattered the gall of his bitterness upon the South," he was perhaps only trying to make himself popular. The successful politician must seize all good opportunities.

WHO'S WHO AT CHURCH.

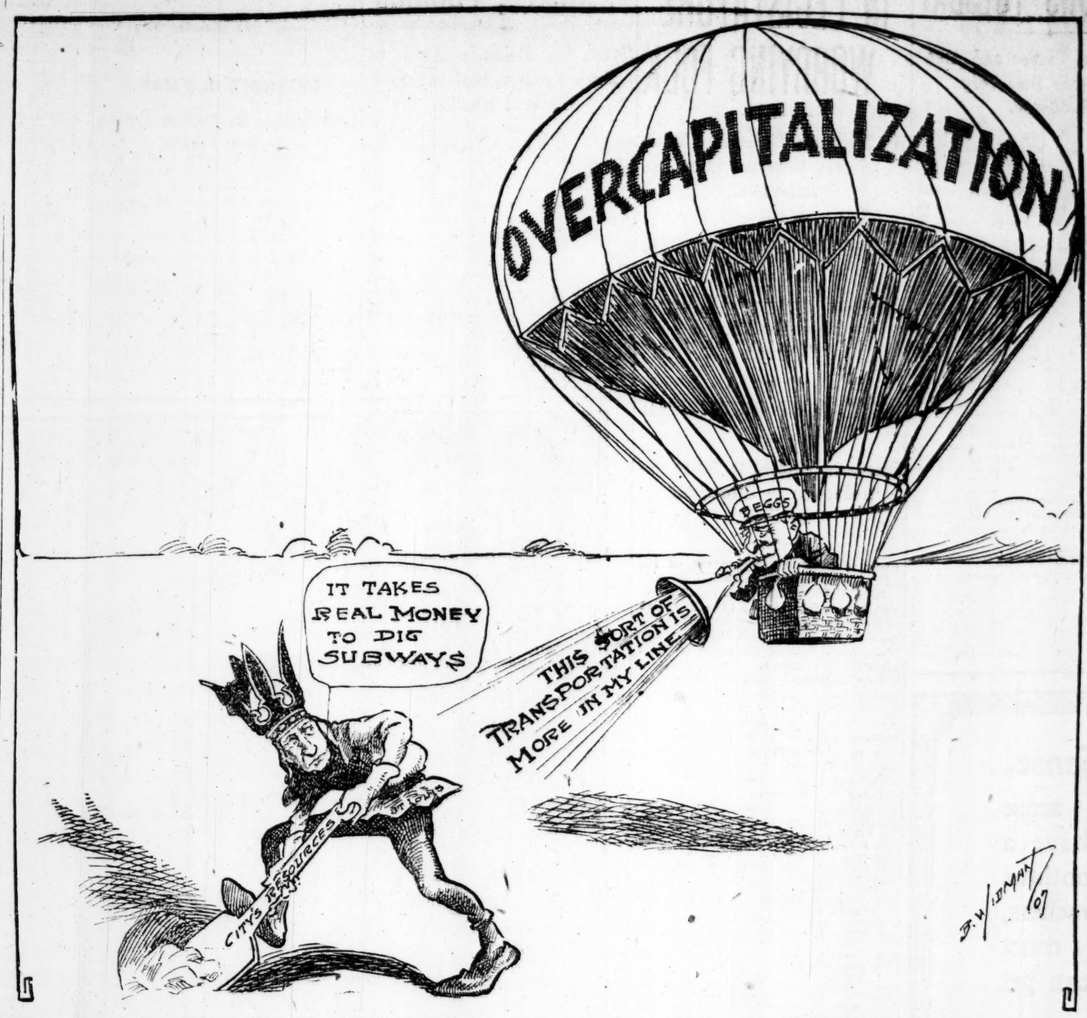

The growing St. Louis custom of including the church service with the opera, the ball and the reception in the matter of telling who were present, should occasion concern.

It has dangerous possibilities. For instance, a description of the clothes worn by some of the wealthy ladies will naturally follow. Is it likely so many ladies will continue going to church to see for themselves what others are wearing when they can remain comfortably and quietly at home and see just as much through the eyes of the trained reporter? Then the omission of the husband's name is embarrassing. The lists are apparently made up at the morning service. Most husbands who go to church at all go in the evening, when some pressure is brought upon them by the necessity that the ladies should have escorts. None of these men whose church attendance upon the preceding day was confined to the evening service gets any credit for it. This is not fair.

The Tubbs wave is rolling on. Anti-tipping bills are being introduced in other states.

HUMOR FROM AUSTRIA.

Elderly lady (to workman who has given her his seat in the street car): O, thank you, very much.

Workman: O, that's nothing at all, miss. Many men only get up when the lady is pretty, but it never makes any difference to me.—Die Muskete.

Principal (to applicant for post of correspondent): For my business you will require a wide knowledge of languages. In which language can you not write?—Figaro.

Eli: I shan't read any more novels. They all stop when he wins his sweetheart, and then it's just the best part.

Father: Little blockhead! Who told you that was the best part?—Floh.

Pastor (just coming from church): Hello, Seppl, why are you looking so unhappy?

Seppl: Because I have just lost five crowns at cards.

Pastor: That's the punishment for not coming to church.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES.

Teacher (severely): What are you laughing at, Willie?

Small Willie: Please ma'am, I wasn't laughing. My face slipped.

Borem (in the parlor): What did your sister say when you told her I was here?

Little Roy: She said she'd had a hunch all day that something fierce was going to happen.

Little Elsie: Why doesn't the baby speak, mamma?

Mamma: He's too young, dear.

Little Elsie: Oh, ain't he got any speaking tube yet?

Arctic Advantages.

—Mary Callan in St. Nicholas.

"It's bedtime, dear," they always say
Just when I'm at my nicest play;
And then I wish for arctic climes,
Where day is six months long, at times.

But when the breakfast bell I hear,
My bed does seem so snug and dear,
I yawn and long with all my might
For six months of arctic night.

AN ECHO OF CHRISTMAS.

In its report of the Christmas festivities at the Christian Orphans' Home, the Christian Philanthropist has this allusion to the Christmas Festival work of the Post-Dispatch:

"In the distance you may be able to see boxes marked 'Post-Dispatch,' all filled with good things to eat. In addition to this, the 'Post' sent knives, whistles, balls, dolls and a nice supply of books suitable for the larger girls and boys; also the great, nice tree."

THINGS HAVE CHANGED FOR NORA

How Ibsen's Heroine Has Found Friends, Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

MME. NAZIMOFF'S audience was slowly winding itself out of the theater after "The Doll's House" matinee the other day.

Once upon a time an Ibsen audience consisted mostly of high-browed men and rather mussy, Burne-Jonesesque women. Today the audience is fashionably gowned, well coiffed, and neither moons nor droops, but sits up smartly.

A good many years ago I heard Nora discussed by a group of German ladies of a conservative but not, supposedly, narrow-minded type. Ibsen's heroine was stigmatized as a "brute" or a "brat" by them, according to the degree of intelligence they condescended to allow her.

"Think of it! To leave a good husband like that, and her children! Ach! so Bohemian. Not well-bred. Bad blood will tell," announced the Frau Major.

"I only went to see it," apologized the young Frau Bankier, "because Duse played it in Italian, and, of course, I didn't understand what it was about. My husband said no respectable woman should see it, but everybody goes when Duse plays. Even the Queen was there."

"Oh," said the Russian baroness, "for my part I think Nora a wonderful character. Few women have her courage."

Whereupon the Frau Major rose to go, murmuring something uncomplimentary about cigarette-smoking foreigners and people with socialistic ideas who would undermine the sanctity of the home.

Things have changed since then. Mme. Nazimoff's audience would have laughed to think that the play could have a bad effect upon their morals, and the comments far out-Ibsened Ibsen.

"Of course," observed one matron, "that man Helmar was a perfectly selfish brute. I saw it as soon as he came on the stage. Nora was a blind little kitten. I suppose that's the Scandinavian part of it."

I think the speech that emphasizes the difference in our point of view was made by an amiable-looking, matter-of-fact person, some forty years old, perhaps:

"Humph! I'd have left that selfish brute long ago if I were Nora."

SENTENCE SERMONS FOR BUSY READERS

From the Chicago Tribune.

LOVE is the one thing you can spend extravagantly without coming to want.

The lighting of the world depends on many being willing to work in darkness.

There never are two talents given to those who are unwilling to invest the one.

The qualities that excite the large soul to emulation arouse the small one to envy.

The cheapest charity of all is that "we would have given if we only had known."

You need not worry about heaven if the thought of you makes people happy.

When one falls in love with truth there is no stopping to count the cost of courtship.

The man who does not work at all is laying the work of two men on some other man's shoulders.

It takes more than a heaven-soaring steeple to overcome the self-adoring tendency of some churches.

If the world does not know Christians from hypocrites it is because the world does not know how to test them.

HOW FLYING-FISH GLIDE

THE theory that the flying fish glides through the air like an aeroplane, propelled by the tail and guided by the pectoral fins, is disproved by Lieutenant-Colonel C. D. Durnford, an English naturalist. He finds that an average flight begins with a jump into the air, impelled by the tail and aided by the wing-like fins; that it is continued by a labored and exceedingly rapid movement of the seemingly motionless wings, which at times slow down so that the vibration becomes visible, and that it ceases with a sudden stoppage or gradual slowing down of the wings before reaching the water.

DAILY THOUGHT ON BUSINESS

By Waldo Pondray Warren.

Beginning tomorrow, Jan. 22, the Post-Dispatch will publish a daily, up-to-date thought on business. It will be of great help and interest to business men, particularly young business men, as it comes from the experience of a man who has for years stood between the business man and the public. LOOK FOR IT HERE!

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

(This column is open for discussion of public questions. Letters must give name and address of writer and should not exceed 150 words. Names will not be published, if so desired.)

The Erratic Auto.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In answer to A. R. Van Antwerp, I wish to state that as much as I dislike the United Railways, I prefer their cars running 25 miles an hour past my door and where my children play, to a sneaky, noiseless non-horn blowing auto going eight miles an hour. They sneak up on you like a snake in the grass. You can hear a car coming before you leave your home, and when you see it you know it will stay in the track, but the auto zigzags along and you are safe nowhere. MAKEANOISE

Tip for the Committee.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

This might help our $10,000 Bridge Committee: When the bill for the Merchants' Bridge was passed with amendments, did it not say that no bridge should be built within two miles up or down the river from the Merchants' Bridge? Also, does not the Eads Bridge charter say that no bridge shall land in St. Clair County except the Eads Bridge? T. F. W.

Again the Wellston Line.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In common with other indignant citizens at the recent outrageous abandonment of the Wellston car line by the United Railways Co., I wish to testify to the justice of the "kicks" raised by the people formerly served by this division. We want a resumption of this service and your paper is going to be the prime factor if we get it.

The district west of Goodfellow avenue and north of Delmar avenue has been built up principally on account of the car service afforded by the Wellston line, and it is a shame to discontinue it. But the real question is, who is benefited by the change? More than 100 have been inconvenienced to every one benefited. Is it fair? PAUL E. BRADLEY.

The Filthy Streets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Is there no way of having our streets cleaned? The dirt and dust reminds one of old St. Louis, when the bywords were filth, mud, neglect, decay. Never have I seen filthier streets than one sees downtown nowadays. Can't something be done? How can anyone expect strangers to move here under such conditions? R. T. KEBONIAL.

As to Public Ownership.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your cartoon and editorial of Jan. 8 have graphically described the misuse of railroads and the present intolerable conditions of our railroad system. But you fail to see that these conditions are the inevitable and logical outcome of private ownership of a public function. That as long as the railroads are privately owned and controlled by a few individuals they will be privately managed.

This is the reason that the people are turning to public ownership as the only adequate solution for the present difficulty and the reason that they vote for it in overwhelming numbers every time they get a chance. You can't fool all the people all the time.

WILLIAM PRESTON ....LL.

Mounted Police, Take Notice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Will you kindly grant space in your columns to call attention to the deplorable condition of the street on Knox avenue, and the flagrant violations of the city ordinances by teamsters and others in driving upon the sidewalks. A strip of walk between the Missouri Pacific and Frisco tracks was filled with cinders recently, but owing to the impassable condition of the street at that point teams are constantly using this walk, with the result that can be expected. Even the mounted police are seen riding over the walk.

THOMAS CARD.

Lid for Street Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There should be some sort of a lid on to keep drunken men of the street cars. The nuisance of drunkenness seems to meet us in every direction. I hope the country members will help to make St. Louis a more decent city.

WEARY.

DOLLY.—We cannot undertake to advise you as to what you should do. You are best acquainted with your own affairs, while we know nothing whatever of you or them. The divorce courts are open to women whose husbands mistreat them. Think well and use your best judgment.

E. C. M.—White and delicately colored feathers soiled but not limp from dampness can be cleaned with Fuller's earth. Stretch on a cloth, and rub in with fine brush. Feathers unsoiled by dampness and which have acquired dingy look, can be washed with fine white soap, and recurled at the door of a moderate hot oven over the pointed edge of a sharp knife.

F. J. Y.—For chronic constipation, try pure olive oil—teaspoonful, tablespoonful or more—after meals or with food. Eat only what you find the stomach digests easily. Be sure to get exercise; breathe deeply in pure air. Bite every mouthful 50 times. Drink hot water an hour before breakfast and again at night. Salt in the hot water is often recommended.

ANNA.—We have this from high Catholic authority: "Catholics married before a Justice of the Peace are not excommunicated by that fact and can, therefore, approach the sacraments. If there is an impediment which makes the marriage before the Justice null in the eyes of the church, they are free to marry again validly or remain single. In any case, they can go to the sacraments."

?—For dark circles under the eyes: An astringent composed of 20 grains tannic acid to 1 ounce glycerine applied to the relaxed tissues under the eyes by means of a bit of gauze, night and morning. A simple massage movement advised consists in pinching up the flabby parts between the thumb and forefinger, passing gradually from the nose out to the temple. Do not make wrinkles during the process. For yellowness, eat such fruits as agree with you, careful in diet and get fresh air and exercise. Use pure olive oil on your food.

THE NEW PLAYS

"AND this is conventional England!" said Amelia Bingham at the Century last night, climbing up a ladder to help the master of Wingate Priory clean out the priory roof gutter. He had a tongs and she had a shovel.

But it wasn't conventional England at all. Only a few moments before, the breezy Miss Emily Painter of New York—that's the part played by Miss Bingham—had been fired bodily into the hall of Wingate Priory by the overturning of the priory trap driven by a drunken coachman sent to bring her from the station. When she rose from the hall floor Miss Painter was a little disfigured but still in the ring, and from that time on all sorts of unconventional things happened. An English shower came up, making quite a new and novel stage effect as seen through the open doors and windows at the back, but the priory leaked so that every one had to raise an umbrella while taking afternoon tea. Villainy developed during this "demnition moist" period, a profligate stepson of the dowager of Wingate priory qualifying for the part of boss villain, with the drunken coachman as his confederate. Two love stories were also stimulated by the rain into blossoming—those of Emily Painter and Capt. Philipson-Wingate and of Muriel Philipson-Wingate and the Rev. Aubrey Vaine. Commander Sir Ethelrod Framlingham of the Royal Navy, became so uncomfortable in the dripping priory that he roared his discomfort like a bull of Bashan. Then it developed that Emily Painter had been asigned to sleep in the "lilac room," a haunted bedchamber, where the two villains had hidden a lot of counterfeiting plates, and we feel that there's going to be some genuine melodrama in this comedy by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland and Boulah Marie Dix before we get through with it. No wonder Emily Painter cried "And this is conventional England!" as she followed Capt. Philipson-Wingate up to the roof.

All through the first act the audience was laughing at Miss Bingham's free-and-easy Americanisms and at the tribulations of the Philipson-Wingates. Hardly anything that happened could have happened in real life, but what did happen was funny, and Miss Bingham made it all seem even funnier than it was. She "bossed" the entire household as if she had each member of it under salary, and, in the lilac room scene of the second act she touched electric bell-knobs that summoned the whole kit and caboodle to her bedside, from the housegirl bringing coals to the village fireman with his hose and helmet. All the time, too, in this act, the two villains were dodging in and out of the room, by the fitful glare of a dark lantern, and divers and sundry members of the Philipson-Wingate family were calling upon Miss Painter, including even Capt. Philipson-Wingate, and one felt that there was positively nothing too unreasonable to happen in that room. Then, in the third act, Emily Painter scared Herbert Trainer, the chief villain, by leveling a toy pistol loaded with cologne at his head and forced him to surrender certain foolish letters with which he was blackmailing poor little Muriel Philipson-Wingate, and in the fourth act, again set in the lilac room, she squirted the cologne into his eyes and revealed him to his step-kin, the Philipson-Wingates, as the counterfeiter criminal for whom Scotland Yard detectives were fine-combing all England. And, finally, after shouting his love through her bedroom keyhole, Capt. Philipson-Wingate came boldly into her chamber and kissed Emily Painter right on her mouth, and Miss Bingham looked out at the audience and cried: "I'm engaged!" and the last curtain fell.

It's a curious story, and nobody can accuse its authors of a lack of originality, and it went with evident success before last night's audience, the house being in a gust of laughter most of the evening. I am disposed to classify it as a farce, with melodramatic trimmings, and Miss Bingham's broad humor in playing the role of Emily Painter emphasizes the aspect of farce, yet there are one or two moments of quite tender sentiment, and these, too, scored with the audience. As far as the play's climax is concerned—the capture and unmasking of the villain in the lilac room—this development of the fourth act could have been made far more effective if we hadn't already had an almost exact duplicate of its scene and happenings in the second act—the retiring of Emily Painter into the big four-poster bed, the stealthy, shivery entrance of the prowling villains, the alarmed household, and all that sort of thing, thus depriving the plot's culmination of all that element of sudden surprise so indispensable to the dramatic value of such climaxes. It seems to me that the lilac room scene of the second act could be entirely eliminated with tremendous gain to the play's interest, and the really important things that happen in that act—the confession of Muriel being about the most salient—could just as well be made to happen in what is now the third act, the scene of which is laid in the priory library. Then we come to the lilac room with keenly whetted curiosity, and a really tense and compelling dramatic finish could be scored. It doesn't seem good dramatic art that we should be asked to contemplate Emily Painter again in bed in the fourth act, with practically the same things happening as happened in the second, and with the lilac room scene thereby robbed of every last vestige of the "thrill" that would undoubtedly attach to it under this handling.

Miss Bingham, as I have already said, plays the role of Emily Painter with bold strokes of farce. She is genuinely funny. Judging from last night's reception of the play the public is going to like her Emily immensely. If just that one change in construction were made, reserving the lilac room scene for the last act, I believe the play, too, would share even more fully in public esteem. As it is, the house liked it last night, and, while such a New York girl as Emily Painter probably never lived, Miss Bingham made her seem possible in a laughing way and the house lets it go at that. It's very much a case of compelling magnetism and strong personality.

The English players supporting the star did clever work, in admirable keeping with the play's atmosphere. Charles Hammond made a manly and likable Capt. Philipson-Wingate, Herbert Mackenzie was an effective gentleman-villain, Charles Butler, as his confederate Juggins, did a good piece of character work, and Fred Powell as Commander Sir Ethelrod Framlingham made the most of what was at first a somewhat overdrawn character. The Lady Yardsley of Rosalie Dupree, the Hon. Yardsley-Yardsley of Percival Aylmer, the Mrs. Philipson-Wingate of Mrs. F. Powell, the Rev. Aubrey Vaine of Joseph Mann, and the Muriel of Jessie Glendinning were competently played.

RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

"THE GRAND MOGUL" AT OLYMPIC.

It was almost like old musical comedy times at the Olympic Theater Sunday night, when a great audience warmed up to the comedy, music and color of "The Grand Mogul," a new piece written by Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders, creators of "The Prince of Pilsen," "King Dodo" and other successes.

The old favorites were all there—the big chorus, the island, the funny man who got on the throne, the tenor in white flannels, the soprano with the soldier sweetheart, and so on ad finitum. Most of the audience seemed to enjoy it, and some things in it were really enjoyable, particularly the comedy of Frank Moulan and the singing of Maude Lillian Berri. There was only one thing seriously the matter with the piece—its want of invention.

We have reached a sad pass in our musical pieces when the invention of men like Pixley and Luders is exhausted. This pair has given us some good fun. Yet their new piece at the Olympic is in a way pitiable for its lack of new things and its palpable straining for duplicates of old successes. The part written for Frank Moulan in his "Sultan of Sulu" was done over again as far as liberal musical comedy ethics permit. The Heidelburg male chorus of "The Prince of Pilsen" is not only done over in respect to the chorus, but is sadly reminiscent of the air.

"The Grand Mogul" is a great big show. Your own taste must guide you in determining whether you care to see it or not. If you still like the old chorus formations, the old island plot, the old sing-song airs, the navy hard by and just enough true love to season the whole, you will enjoy "The Grand Mogul." You will find plenty of others with you, for, judging by the audience Sunday night and the fervor with which it encored some of the songs and dances, the old-fashioned musical comedy is not "dodo" by a jugful.

"MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM" AT THE GARRICK.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," seen last year at the Century, returned to the Garrick last night for a week's stay, Manager Lawrence having united his forces this season with the independent houses. The cast was much the same as was seen last year, Harry Conor and Miss Grace Real taking the leading roles.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" concerns a suspicious wife, a husband willing to lie, and his friend who is not only willing to prevaricate but is anxious and expert. The husband went up in the Ferris Wheel one night with a strange woman in the car with him. The machinery broke and the two were kept in the air all night. When the husband reached home the next morning too late for breakfast his wife refused to believe his truthful explanation. He was not anxious to prove the truth of the story about the broken down Ferris Wheel because of the strange lady feature of the incident so he next told his wife that he had stayed all night with a friend. He invented the name and address of the friend and the suspicious wife sent a telegram to that name and address, asking Mr. Brown to call at her home as "her happiness depended" on seeing him.

The lying husband held the blotting paper that had been used on the telegram before a mirror and read it. Then he arranged for a friend to answer the telegram and pretend to be Mr. Brown. But there was a real Mr. Brown who got the message and answered it. His wife also saw the telegram and she pursued her husband. The real Mr. and Mrs. Brown were repudiated and were half convinced that they were mistaken as to their own identity. Finally the complications were all straightened out and the three families that were disrupted were all reconciled.

Miss Reals as the suspicious wife who was ready to forgive was true to life, too true to be really funny. Her acting was so near the real thing that many a man in the audience felt more like gulping than grinning.

Allan Murnane as Frank Fuller, the mendacious friend of Jack Temple, acted fluently, gracefully, unhesitatingly and convincingly. Edwin Fowler did a good bit of character work as the real Mr. Brown and Miss Carey Hastings was capital as his wife. Even her garments were eloquent.

Harry Conor, the loquacious butler, caused many laughs, though in real life would not have held his job ten minutes.

The production would be improved if Miss Reals and Miss Mabel Cameron's wives, would make up to look younger, or if Mr. Murname and Mr. Fuller, the husbands, would add a few wrinkles and appear to be older. Even if the husbands certainly seemed to be years younger than their consorts.

"Me, Him and I."

Watson, Kelly and Arlington, the funny trio of comedy stars in "Me, Him and I," which began a week's engagement at the Grand yesterday afternoon and evening, seem to be fully as popular as when they made the hit of that production in former seasons. They were warmly welcomed when they made their first appearance on the stone handcar yesterday, and from that moment onward their portrayal of the humorous hobo type kept the house in a roar. They are supported by a company adequate to the demands of the play, which calls for much singing and dancing, and Max Hoffman has provided a lot of catchy music.

"Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," at Imperial.

The new A. H. Woods heart-interest play, "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," one of the popular-price hits of the New York season, began a week's engagement at the Imperial with matinee and evening performances yesterday. Edith Browning takes the leading role. There's a great scene in which she is hurled upon a rapidly moving belt and drawn to a big fly-wheel making 100 revolutions a minute, another in which her blind sister Jessie is abducted by "Blinky Bill," a particularly villainous villian, and taken to the "Egyptian room," a horrible den of criminals, and the story of the sewing girl's tribulations is thrilling along these lines from start to finish.

"The Millionaire Detective," at Havlin's.

The keen sleuth work done by Robert Rose, a Wall street banker, both in his proper person and disguised as Sir Robert Bancroft, an English nobleman, seems unfailingly to thrill local audiences, and Howard Hall, in "The Millionaire Detective," at Havlin's received a welcome yesterday in keeping with this truth. It's an exciting story, based on the operations of a "Queen of Frenzied Finance," and there's also an interesting romance in its plot, involving a banker's daughter. The star is supported by a competent company.

Utopian Burlesquers at Standard.

The Utopian Burlesquers opened the week at the Standard yesterday afternoon and evening. They present two burlesques, entitled "Fun on Tucker's Farm" and "The Hello Girl," and an interesting olio, introducing Marion and Pearl, Ed and Rolfa White, The Sidonias, Franklin Batie, Edna May Mathews, Margaret King and the Great Valentines.

Boston Belles at the Gayety.

At the Gayety the week was opened yesterday by the Boston Belles Burlesque Co. in extravaganza and vaudeville. Among those appearing on the program are Clarence Wilbur, Frankie Bailey, Black and McCone, Harry La-Mar, Rice and Walters, Hattie Mills and 16 show girls and Harper, Desmond and Hilliard.

"Fedora" by German Stock Company.

For Fraulein Vilma von Hohenau's benefit the Odeon was well filled last night, the German stock company presenting Sardou's "Fedora," with the beneficiary in the title role. Fraulein von Hohenau gave a vivid portrayal of this strongly emotional part, and was well supported by the excellently cast company.

Choral-Symphony Popular Concert.

The Choral-Symphony Orchestra's popular concert at the Odeon yesterday afternoon was one of the best of the series. Miss Nellie Widman, the soloist of the occasion, was heard in Bohm's "Still wie die Nacht," and in Tosti's "Good-Bye," with piano accompaniment, also in Duprato's "Ieibas" and Bond's "I Love You Truly," and made a most pleasing impression, her mezzo-soprano voice being heard to excellent advantage. The features of the orchestral programs were Tschaikowsky's "Nut Cracker Suite" and the overture from Massenet's "Le Cid." The closing orchestral number, selections from "Il Trovatore," also came in for special appreciation.

ADVICE TO LOVERS

Written for the Post-Dispatch
BY BETTY VINCENT.

ONE of the gravest mistakes the young woman of today is likely to commit is that of flippancy. In our reaction from what seems to us the somewhat stagy manner in which our grandmothers resented any affront offered them, we are apt to err on the snide and accept as a flippant jest remarks that we should resent.

The "Sir, how dare you!" manner has gone out of fashion; we no longer wear our dignity like a chip on the shoulder, as though daring someone to knock it off. Formerly the proper answer for a woman to make to a man who made himself offensive was thought to consist of slapping his face. Now we realize that the personal contact involved in physical retaliation such as slapping is unpleasant, inadequate and ridiculous. But too often we pass over in silence, or with a light jest, sneering remarks that it is the part of dignified womanhood to resent. The only way to avenge yourself for a slight of any kind from a man is cold and studied avoidance of him.

Her Parents Object.

Dear Betty:

I am a young man 21 years old and have been keeping company with a girl 18 years old for the last year on street corners. We are very much attached to one another, but her parents object very much to the marriage. She wants to be married without permission and I do not know what to do, so am going to leave it with you. Have a good position and can support her, but probably not as she is used to living, her parents being very wealthy. A. D. K.

You should not marry so young a girl without the consent of her parents. Why don't you call on her mother and talk things over with her? Tell her you love her daughter and intend to marry her, but that you want to be manly and straightforward with her parents.

Doesn't Ask Him to Call.

Dear Betty:

I am a young man about 19 and I have been going with a young girl about the same age. I love her dearly, but she never asks me to her house. Is it because she does not want me? I know her father and mother do not object, for I know they like me. Is it because she does not love me, or is it because she does not want me to call?

Y. W. B.

Perhaps she is waiting for you to ask to call. Talk to her about it.

FOR THE BOYS AND GIRLS

A WILD GOOSE CHASE.

Invitations for this amusement may be sent on slips of cardboard, on which a goose may be drawn, with the word "wild" written over it and "chase" under it. Or it could simply have "Come to a Wild Goose Chase," written on it.

When the guests arrive they are given slips of paper which will direct them to their first sign-post; there they will find instructions for their next move. Of course, each guest has a different locality to investigate.

For example: One is told to look under a vase on the mantel; here he finds a slip of paper bidding him to look in the corner of the first stair landing. When he finds the directions here he may be sent to some other distant place until he finally reaches the goal where he will find a favor which, will be a souvenir. As the favors are in pairs, each gentleman must search for a lady having an article duplicating his own. He then claims her for his partner for the remainder of the evening.

The searching parties are continually passing each other in the hunt and find much amusement in comparing notes on their progress.

Dropped Centrals.

(Words of five letters; drop the middle letter from the first word to form the second of the two blanks in each line.)

The —— man must muffle his —— from the cold.
—— heat does not "——" in the Arctics, we're told.
His —— suits the case; we —— on his word.
To offer a —— for —— seems absurd.
My —— is —— for one of his age;
To —— gives him pleasure, so why should I ——?
At —— I'll repay ——, said Quakeress Ruth.
'Twas no ——, she was acting, her —— spoke the truth.
His —— is labor, this —— of deeds;
Though —— his bearing, yet —— are his needs.

Reversible Chain.

Composed of reversible words of four letters each, the last letter of each word, or link, forming the first letter of the next word, and so on.

Reading the chain from left to right: Manner, an animal, the fourth of an acre, to hold a belief, a waste covered with patches of heath, a frame on which to wind yarn, a noose, to look slyly.

Reading chain from right to left: To retain, a puddle, a distortion of the face, unobstructed space, reward, an entrance, a tall, coarse grass, judgment.

Transformed Words.

Supply the same letter to each word and change part of a house into to drop; part of the body into a fruit; crime into to draw out; to burn into a weapon; a conjunction, an article of food; to preserve, taste; a month, a city official.

Crambo.

Give each guest a pencil and half a sheet of paper. Then each one must write one word (a noun), turn the paper over the word to hide it, and pass it to the next person on the left.

Each one then writes a question on the paper he holds, folds it over to hide the writing and passes it to the neighbor on the left.

Every player then opens the paper he has, reads silently the word and question and then writes a rhyme which must answer it.

The Time to Save.

Weary: Say, Ragsy; dis is de time er year when lots er fellers has ter save dere money.

Ragsy: What fer?

At the
ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION.
For Sale by all Representative Grocers

Can You Make Apple Butter?— As Good as This?

IF YOU could, it would cost you twice as much, not counting your time and the discomfort of hours of standing over a hot stove.

But it would be well nigh impossible for you to get such apples as we use. And you could hardly get such full-strength spices, because ordinary pure spices are just pulverized—leaves, twigs, berries, etc., that contain spice—husks and all.

Our kind of spice is the pungent flavoring powder only, extracted from those things that contain it.

Then we make so much apple butter that we get it right every time.

But, best of all, this fine flavor we are so careful to get and retain, is preserved in all its delicacy and freshness by

Our New Vacuum Process

You know, even the little air you must leave in the tops of the jars will in time make your preserves rancid.

Fermentation sets in and robs it of its flavor day by day, even if it does not actually spoil it.

So we hold this fermentation in absolute check by drawing off the air and applying our vacuum seal—and you get all the freshness and the full flavor of the finest fruit.

You might make apple butter as good as this, but it would cost you much more, put you to much trouble, and without our vacuum sealing machinery you could never retain all the full flavor and freshness you will find in if you do not instantly taste the difference—and like it.

Every grocer is authorized to return the full purchase price in any case of the slightest dissatisfaction.

It would be very easy for you to be dissatisfied after reading our strong claims, if Clymer's Apple Butter Temtors were not a truly wonderful product.

We could not afford to offer so liberal a taste-test if such were not the case.

Pure—But More than Pure

The stores have been flooded of late years with "apple" butter made of most anything that is cheaper than apples.

But even pure apple butter can be made of very poor apples and parts of apples you would throw away in your home apple-butter-making.

Such apple butter made of poor apples, and poor-quality though pure sugar and spices, will meet the requirements of any pure food law that could be devised.

But such apple butter does not meet the Clymer requirements of quality which you find and taste in Temtors.

Try a jar today.

BALL PLAYERS GETTING READY TO "STRING" THE YOUNGSTERS

Training Season, Now Almost at Hand, Gives the Older Men Great Chance to Play Practical Jokes on New Comers.

SOME SENT TO MANAGER FOR DIAMOND

AFTER all, life is but a span and the gap between one baseball season and another is but a shorter span. We hadn't ceased commenting on the drubbing received by the Chicago Cubs in the world's series, and here it is but little more than a month until the parade of the several next year hope-to-be world-beaters starts for the sunny South, and as we learn of this and the other player taking on handball and putting off flesh, we realize that the training season is near at hand. The period of three or four weeks of training embraces all the real fun of the year.

Traveling on the road during the summer's campaign was formerly productive of some fun, but it has grown monotonous to the players and managers, and besides, there is always too much at issue to have the sterner business broken in upon by mischievous pranks. It is in the spring when the young man's thoughts turn lightly to thoughts of love, that the baseball player finds another outlet for his exuberance of spirits. For love he hasn't time. For jokes he has and woe betide the mortal who cannot appreciate the spirit in which the jokes are given and take them with the same degree of joviality in his soul. All wits conspire to unload a big bundle of fun and merriment in the cities of the South or West.

Like First Day at School.

The gathering at training quarters on the first day is very much like the clustering of recruits on the opening day of college. The old fellows are looking for a youngster, who will take the bone attached to some hewhiskered joke and run away with it. And there are always plenty of bites.

On the St. Louis American League's team, Jack O'Connor, Powell and Howell have the reputation of being the greatest practical jokers and McCloskey himself is the prime conspirator of the Cardinals, although he finds plenty of valuable assistance in more than half of his team. What these fellows can do to a newcomer is worthy of Peck's Bay Boy, Tom Sawyer or Huckleberry Finn in their palmiest days.

The baseball youngster and the scribe out for his first season of pencil pushing in training camp are the common property of the jokesmiths. They have no recourse. They are legitimate prey and unprotected by any law, human or divine. If they are wise they take their medicine and work it off on the next comer.

As a rule, the young ball players who report for practice in the South have never seen that part of the country, and they will stand for any kind of a yarn from an alligator man-eater to flying frogs which frequently knock down long drives in the outfield. The favorite opening day gag is to take all the newcomers to a badger fight, which is always held contrary to law, and the journey to the fighting spot must always be guarded with the utmost secrecy. The badger is supposed to fight a wildcat, and young ballplayers have frequently walked five or six miles through dense underbrush to see this novel sight, only to find a sign on a tree telling of the remarkable fact that the badger has committed suicide rather than become a lawbreaker. Suddenly the newcomers look around to discover themselves alone and lost. They drag wearily back over miles of country, when, if their wits had been working normally, they would have discovered that only a few hundred yards separated them from camp.

Old Snipe Hunt Gag.

A snipe hunt is sometimes planned at night for those who have never read the Youth's Companion, Ladies' Home Journal or other weekly story papers. Led on by flaring torches, the young ballplayers and occasionally a scribe who has never been in the country, are led to a deep swamp and finally taken to a ditch or gully. They are then told that a bag is to be placed in this ditch and held open with a forked stick. To give the newcomers all the benefit of the game they are given the privilege of holding the bag while the old ones go out and beat the bush for snipe. The old ones beat it straight back over a short route to the hotel.

The gullible and expectant novices "hold the bag." This game is where that very trite saying originated. They utter not a sound. They are wary and cautious lest they frighten coming snipe. For hours they stick to the job. They they begin to theorize and deduct and the usual outcome is that they arrive at the hotel long after sun up, to find their betrayers calmly munching their toast breakfast. The manager reprimands the young players for making a night of it and while not a smile breaks forth on the faces of the veterans, the youngsters swallow the dose and dare not tell the real reason of their failure to turn in at the usual hour.

Raiding Poker Games.

The police officials and the local sporting men at these towns are always wise to what is going on and they lend valuable assistance in perpetrating these jokes. One of the old-time tricks is to get a crowd playing poker and have one of the local officers arrest them. He always refuses to consider mercy in any form, but after a long controversy he will be bribed. The youngsters then dig up their hard-earned coin and pass it over. The next morning the manager hands it back to them and they are the laughing stock of the town, in addition to getting a serious warning from the manager.

Both the St. Louis teams have an old trick of trying out the youngsters on the diamond and nearly putting them out of business. The youngster is always very ambitious. He wants to show a willingness to work and this gives the jokers a chance. They will get him in a chase between the bases and he will try every trick he knows to keep from getting touched. As a matter of fact, the old players have no intention of touching him, but they keep the recruit running up and down the line until he falls exhausted. They then tell him he has had a good workout and give him the laugh.

Demand Their Diamonds.

As a rule the veteran ball players own a diamond or so, and they always wear all they have the first day out. The innocent newcomer has no diamonds, but has hopes. Some old player who is made a confidant of the youngster tells him that the manager furnishes a diamond of some kind to each man, and nine out of ten of them fall for a trip to the manager to get his share of the sparklers.

Last year the Browns had lots of fun out of a recruit who was advised to apologize to McAleer for having missed a meal that had to be paid for just the same. McAleer accepted the apology without a smile, and the young player promised faithfully—and in all seriousness—that he would never let it occur again.

AN IDEAL SOCKER DAY WAS SUNDAY

Shutouts and Close Games Were Predominant in All St. Louis Leagues.

ATTENDANCE WAS GOOD

There is no gainsaying that Sunday was ideally sockerish in the tingle it injected into the players on the various and several elevens striving for honors in the different leagues of St. Louis. The first snappy Sabbath for several weeks, it found the players in the prime of condition. Two nip-and-tuck encounters were marked up in the Mound City League. But one score was necessary to win in each. The North Ends and the Innisfails each tabbed one score against the Hibernians and the Pabsts. The North Ends and Hibernians played fast football and only the scintillating work of Howler and Grimling at their respective posts kept many goals from being booted. F. Noonan shot the only goal of the game. The Pabsts put up a wholesome defense against the Innisfails and inches counted in measurements on missed goals by both sides. Ficel Brothers, Kavanaugh and Zilch played a great game for the Pabsts and Donald, Courtney, Graham and Witherspoon featured for the Innisfails.

Shut-Outs in Association.

The high wind interfered with long passes in the two games in the Association Football League, but the sudden winter chill of the day did not effect the attendance. The Minstrels were shut out by the Nugents, 3 to 0, in the first game and the St. Leos won the second from the St. Roses, 2 to 0.

The nemisis of hard luck seemed in pursuit of the Minstrels and two or three goals were missed by narrow chance. Kavanaugh, Byrne and Thompson shot the goals for their opponents. It was in the last two minutes of play that the St. Roses broke badly for the slight space of time required to shoot two goals for their opponents. Before this time the game had been scoreless and hard fought.

A Scoreless Contest.

One of the three games of the triple-header in the Sunday amateur league, that between the St. Anns and St. Marks, was fought out for the full of two 30-minute halves without a score. Brilliant efforts were made by both teams, but these were mostly thwarted by the wind. The C. B. C. team had a large contract in vanquishing the St. Thomas bunch of the South End and through sheer luck shoved over two more goals than their opponents. The score was 3 to 1.

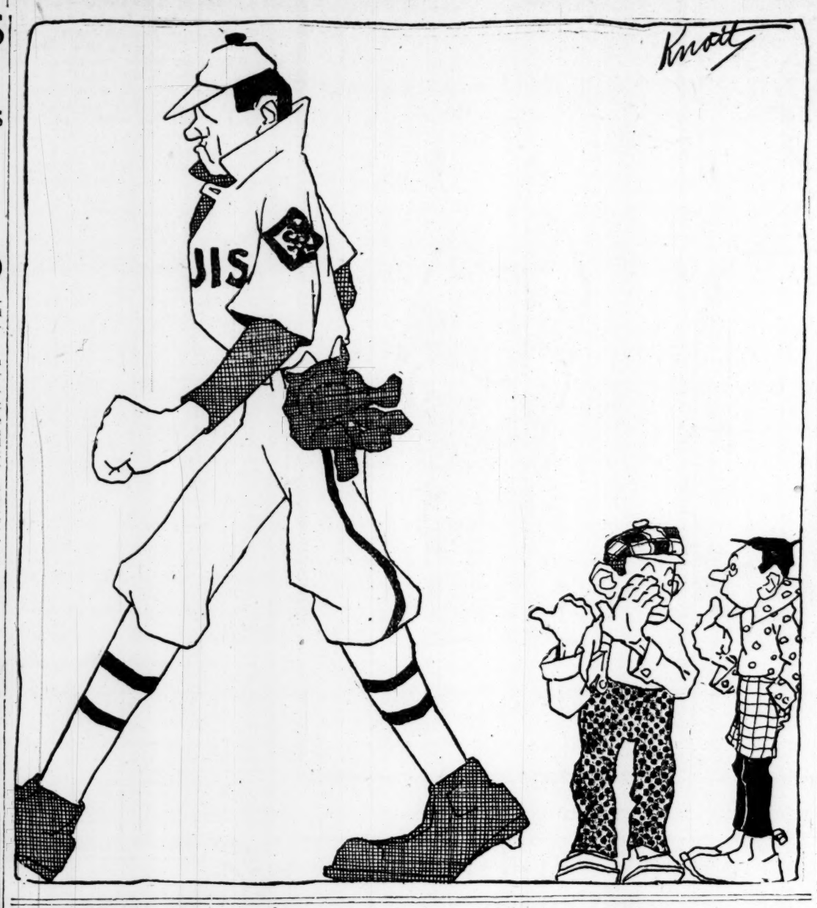

The St. James aggregation was downed by the St. Mathews, 3 to 1. At that, the way of the leaders of the league was not strewn with roses. It was work from start to finish and only consistent teamwork held the scoring machine to its task. The boys from Clifton Heights put up one of the strongest games of the season as it was predicted they would by the Post-Dispatch Sunday morning.

Woman Lodge Officer Dies.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Lynds, wife of Benjamin Lynds, and most worthy grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, will take place Tuesday afternoon from her home, 3645 Finney avenue. Services will be held in the Third Baptist Church, and the interment will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Rev. Dr. Williamson will officiate. At the time of her death, which was caused by pneumonia, Mrs. Lynds was 73 years old. She and her husband had been residents of St. Louis for 45 years. Besides her husband, she left a son, Edwin M. Lynds, and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur S. Partridge.

SPORTING ST. LOUIS—BALLPLAYER

TRACK TRAGEDY STARTED JOCKEY

Hennessey Has Had Rapid Rise to Fame Down at New Orleans.

HAS STRUCK IT RICH

Jockey Hennessey, the little rider who is winning all kinds of laurels on the New Orleans tracks, has had a rapid rise to fame.

A racetrack tragedy really lifted Hennessey along in the world. A year ago last winter McCafferty fell on the back turn, sustaining injuries from which he expired a few hours later. Jocky O'Niel and Mary McCafferty, the jockey's sister, were engaged at the time. A year rolled around and at the very same spot O'Niel sustained a fall which all but proved fatal. On his recovery his bride-to-be insisted on his retirement from the saddle. This he agreed to do, and they shortly afterward wed. Then O'Niel went into partnership with his former employer and friend, Fred Burlew. Then came the necessity of finding a new stable rider. Hennessey, a black-eyed little stable boy, who had shown much adeptness in galloping Beldame, was given a chance.

"I think this boy will make a great jockey and I purpose giving him a chance, even if it takes a year," declared Burlew, and that is exactly what he has done. Hennessey was brought down here and the experience he is getting is fast developing his natural horsemanship.

After two more months of Burlew's coaching, Hennessey will be in a position to return to New York fully able to bear the mantle of the great O'Neil. Less than a year ago Hennessey grubbed about the Sheepshead stables for $20 a month, while today he knows he may be able to earn $25,000 a season within two years, or at the end of his apprenticeship term to Burlew. Hennessey is but 16 years old, and is really the most promising bit of jockey material down at New Orleans. Some of the experts declare he, and he alone, will wrest the premiership from "Marvelous" Miller in the time to come.

Three Fights Mean a

Fortune for Squires

HOW SQUIRES CAN EARN FORTUNE IN THE NEXT SIX MONTHS.

Long end of $25,000 purse for defeating Jack O'Brien $18,750
Long end of $30,000 purse for defeating Tommy Burns 22,500
Short end of $40,000 purse for battle with Jim Jeffries 10,000

Total for six months' battling $51,250

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 21.—Bill Squires will be given a chance to show what kind of championship caliber he is made of when he comes here before any big club hangs up a $40,000 or $50,000 purse for Jeff and Squires, according to present indications.

Jeff's positive refusal to accept anything less than $30,000 win, lose or draw, for a battle with the Antipodean and the very evident lack of enthusiasm on the part of even the most sanguine promoter to hang up a purse commensurate with Jeff's desires, makes a meeting between the alfalfa specialist and the Australian a matter of much question. However, Squires is to come over here and the plan of Manager McCarey is to stage him with Jack O'Brien and Tommy Burns and then give him a chance to meet Jeff if he puts these two likely heavies away in anything like championship form.

McCarey is waiting the arrival of the husky boy from Australia before talking purses to him, but he has firmly determined to go after such a match and both Jack O'Brien and Tommy Burns have expressed their desire to see what the man from across the Pacific can do.

A match between Squires and O'Brien would be a good card, and if it is made there will be some lively bidding for it, as the Nevada promoters are not going to let the chance slip away from them to stage the fracas if they can help it. It is likely, therefore, that Squires will profit more by not meeting Jeff right away than he would by tackling the champion of champions. Should Squires really show up as well as reports would have him appear he might whip Burns and O'Brien and thereby annex the long end of the two very substantial purses; then he could fight Jeff and gather in the loser's end of a nice, fat lump of gold coin, for not even his Australian friends allow him a chance with the big fellow.

These three fights, which Squires can pull off inside of six months, would make him independently wealthy should he win the two and gather the short end of the third, and he could retire to Australia with a well satisfied conscience of having done "pretty bloomin' well in Hamerica."

Such matches would be rational and good attractions, and would discount the ridiculous cross class matches that some of the promoters in their eagerness to promote something have been suggesting of late.

HERE AND THERE IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

LLOYD JEVNE is leading in the three-cushion billiard tournament at the Grand with a record of two games won and none lost. John Horgan has won two games and lost one, which is also the record of Tom Hueston. Frank Benson plays Charley Noland this evening.

GRADUATE AND undergraduate sentiment at Harvard is so strong for the continuance of athletics that they will fight tooth and nail against any report of the special committee which puts athletics and football outside Harvard's sphere. There is a general feeling, however, at Harvard that when it comes down to the last ditch that the university authorities will not put intercollegiate athletics under the ban and this feeling grows in spite of the fact that managers of the various varsity teams have not been allowed to pick mates for any contest beyond the close of the present academic year, it is expected, though, that there will be some strong recommendations for changes, particularly in football.

THE FOLLOWING events will compose the program for the dual track meet between the junior teams of C. B. C. and St. Louis University, which will be decided in the St. Louis U. gymnasium next Thursday afternoon: 25-yard dash, 25-yard low hurdles, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run and high jump.

THE TRACK men of the Missouri A. C. will start training in the club gymnasium this evening. Bassett has a number of new candidates for the track team who will be given a chance to show what they can do. The work this evening will be light, consisting of practicing starts and the like.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN has contributed $100 to the wife of Terry McGovern. John L. says in his letter that if the other men who claim to be friends of the little Brooklynite will also contribute according to their means, that Terry's family need not suffer because of McGovern's affliction. McGovern is still in a private asylum, because of his mental breakdown.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY basketball team defeated the Missouri U. five in a game at Columbia, Mo., Saturday night by a score of 28 to 24. Team work and accuracy in throwing goal from the foul mark won for the wearers of the myrtle and maroon.

LESTER GILMORE is leading in the Missouri pool championship tournament at the Broadway, with a record of seven games won and none lost. W. J. Scott, the present holder of the championship, and Maurice Balzheiser have each won six games and lost one. Frank Keith and O. D. Davis will play this evening.

ST. LOUIS ALUMNI BEAT ALTON'S FIVE.

Saturday night, the High School Alumni Girls' basketball five journeyed to Alton and defeated the High School team of that place by a score of 28 to 7. Alton's good throwing was brilliant at practice, but amounted to little when the Alumni guards, Miss Riordan and Miss Hensel, were there to interfere. Little Miss Nolan played an excellent game for Alton and Miss McCrea acquitted herself nobly by scoring 5 foul points for Alton. Miss Hofman, captain of the Alumni, played her usually good game and was well supported by Miss Rasher and Miss Wilson. This was Miss Wilson's first game with the team and she "made good." The score:

CHICK STAHL'S BALL PLAYERS MUST LEAD THE SIMPLE LIFE

"Chick" Stahl, the new manager of the Boston Americans, has ideas of his own about the training of a baseball club. Stahl knows that the training methods of the ex-champions were lax under Manager Jimmy Collins and he will make some radical changes.

"There will be no fooling," says Stahl, "and the men must get right down to business. We have a big job before us. Every player will have to get in condition in the South. If not, it is up to the player, as I won't waste any time with anyone who is not willing to work hard.

"It is hard for any manager to tell old players what to do and how to do it.

"Hitting and base running will be practiced extensively. The veterans and youngsters will be treated alike. We have always been a joke in the matter of laying down bunts. This spring in the South much attention will be paid to that."

DOE RUN TEAMS ON FOR TONIGHT

Two-Man Records Ruthlessly Slaughtered in Sunday's Tourney Events.

INTEREST AT HEIGHT

With all the energy displayed by the brawny son of the up-State farmer when he wields the sledge and slowly forces the ball up the wire of the testing machine at a county fair, the two-man team bowlers in Sunday night's city tourney, assaulted the two-man records previously held and it was three times displaced being finally held by A. Nierder and E. Dierker with a score of 1218.

Looking forward to Monday night's events, it can be safely guaranteed that this will be the banner affair of the series. First and foremost come the Doe Run bowlers led by that prince of good fellows, the millionaire, Graves, whose money and personal efforts have long been directed towards sustaining St. Louis in the front ranks of national bowling society. City Attorney Tom Anderson and President Otto F. Stiffel are also on the cards. The schedule:

Five-Men Teams.

7:30 p. m.—Enterprise Social, George E. Kaiser; Bankers, M. A. Phillips; Girard, S. L. Drake; Fern Glens, E. Grassmuck; Tournament, Otto F. Stifel; Bonne Terre County Club; Buckeye Due Run, J. F. Graves; Blue Ribbon Doe Run, J. Carver.

9:45 p. m.—Lange, George Lange; Veni Vidi Vici, Sam Schults; Carondelet No. 1, P. J. Wichman; Carondelet No. 2; Obert No. 1; Obert No. 2, Huelman; Cherokee and Consumers.

R. BRYSON IS IN A. B. C. RACE AGAIN

HERRMANN HIS OPPONENT

Robert H. Bryson of Chicago, president of the American Bowling Congress, will make the race for office again and will run against Garry Herrman, baseball magnate, who is being groomed for the battle by the bowlers of Cincinnati, who believe that with him for a trump card they will have no trouble in landing the ripest plum at the disposal of the national organization—the championship meeting for 1908.

Bryson announces his candidacy in a letter sent to prominent tenpin politicians of Chicago and St. Louis, which was received today and which brought out the fact that the incumbent has many stanch friends and supporters in this city. In his letter Bryson announces for the first time his intentions, declaring that he desires to succeed himself as president of the A. B. C., and asking St. Louis to support him.

While no official action has been taken by the Chicago Bowling association that chapter of the A. B. C., it is whispered that Bryson will be the choice of the majority of Chicago's thirteen or fourteen delegates who will have votes here in St. Louis. There is some little feeling locally against Cincinnati, brought about through the alleged action of the Porkopolis bowlers in finding fault with the administration of Secretary Karpf and Treasurer Pasdeloup. Although this action was later denied, friends of Pasdeloup, who is a Chicago man, cannot forget the sting, and in consequence St. Paul instead of Cincinnati is favored for 1908 by many of those high up in the councils of the local tenpin world.

PENN WILL SEND A TEAM ABROAD

Mike Murphy Has Put the Matter Up to the Athletic Committee.

FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Providing the Athletic Committee of the University of Pennsylvania approves the plan of Mike Murphy, the Quaker's trainer, the University of Pennsylvania will send a crack team to England in 1908 to compete in the Olympic games.

Trainer Murphy has been considering such a proposal for a number of months, and yesterday he declared that he would make a strong effort to have Pennsylvania represented in the world's greatest athletic classic for the good it would do out-door sport at the Red and Blue institution.

As only Capt. Whitham of the track team, will be ineligible after the close of the coming season, Murphy retains a strong list of athletes to do battle against the pick of all nations in the Olympic events and he is confident that Pennsylvania will earn world-wide laurels in sports.

The matter rests entirely with the Athletic Committee.

SHIPPERS ACCUSE TWENTY RAILWAYS

Commerce Commission Begins Probe of Charges of Rate Discrimination.

DENVER, Jan. 21.—Interstate Commerce Commissioner C. A. Prouty began an investigation here today of alleged violations of law by railroads affecting Denver and other Colorado points.

Three cases are under examination. Two of them are upon complaints filed by the Merchants' Traffic Association of Denver, and the third instituted by George J. Kindel, a Denver manufacturer.

The railroads cited to appear so far are the New York, New Haven & Hartford; New York Central & Hudson River; Baltimore & Ohio; Pennsylvania; Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati & St. Louis; Lake Shore & Michigan Southern; Michigan Central; Erie; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Chicago & Northwestern; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; Coast Line; Denver & Rio Grande; Rio Grande Western; Southern Pacific; Missouri Pacific; Union Pacific, and Wabash.

The complaints allege violation of section four of the Interstate Commerce act, which forbids the charging of a rate for a short haul which shall be higher in the aggregate than for a longer haul under similar circumstances and conditions, and also the requirement that the shipper on the longer haul shall not pay a higher rate per ton per mile than on the shorter haul in the same direction.

Generally the allegations are of unjust discriminations in tariff rates on classes and commodities and unlawful combinations by the roads made defendants.

WENT TO PARK TO CAPTURE AUTO

Boys Admit Stealing Horse and Buggy to Pursue Bigger Game.

Two boys, armed with pistols and riding in a buggy, set forth yesterday to capture an automobile in the parks of St. Louis in true Dick Turpin style. But the owner of the buggy appeared and captured the boys before they could put their plans into effect.

The boys are Walter Scherd, 15 years old, of 1211 Grattan street, and Ralph Martin, 16 years old, of 1429 Missouri avenue. They will be tried in the Juvenile Court.

Scherd told the police that he and his companion had planned to drive to Forest Park and there stop an automobile, tie the chauffeur to a tree and then take a spin about town. They went to Forest Park, but were unable to get near enough to an automobile to effect a capture. Both of the youths carried revolvers, but Martin's was lying in the bottom of the vehicle.

A few hours later A. H. Austin of 315 Victoria Building happened to be at Tenth and Chestnut streets and recognized his rig, which was being driven by the two boys. He stopped them, got into the buggy and drove with the would-be robbers to Twelfth street and Clark avenue, where he turned them over to detectives.

Scherd was locked up at the Four Courts, while Martin was released on bond. Martin's father, Charles P. Martin, had previously reported him as missing.

WHO HAS THE DIAMOND?

Mrs. Carter Expects Return of Missing Gem.

A diamond ring, valued at $300, which was the property of Mrs. Fred Carter, 4632 McPherson avenue, which mysteriously disappeared from under her pillow during the night early in January, and for which the detectives have been looking ever since, is expected to be returned to its owner within the next 48 hours. Through what channel the Carters refuse to say, and the police say they do not know.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter Mrs. Carter said: "We do not want to say much about the matter just now. The ring has not been recovered, but we expect to have it within a short time. I know nothing about notice to the police to discontinue looking for it."

The Carters occupy apartments in the residence of Mrs. E. J. Molloy. Members of the family said they knew nothing of the report that the jewel had been heard from.

U. RY'S PREFERRED MAKES RECOVERY

Attempts to Bid the Stock Lower Unsuccessful and Advance Is ½ Point on Stock Exchange—Heavy Sales Monday Morning—Commerce Shares Easier—Forenoon Close Steady.

The first session of the week on the Stock Exchange Monday was fairly active. The feature of the market was the recovery to 77¼ of United Railways preferred stock on good-sized transactions in 100-share blocks. The market on preferred of traction is still very strong in demand and the price this morning was advanced under persistent attempts to bid the stock down to 76¾. There was also limited transactions in the common stock which holders refused bids for 42½ and sold at 43.

The traction 4 per cent bonds remain unchanged in bid and ask at 84¾ bid and 85⅛ asked.

There was only limited activity in the bond market, there being a few sales of St. Louis Brewery Association 6 per cent bonds at 101¼ unchanged from the last sales.

The trading in Bank of Commerce shares was not lively, limited probably to an inclination toward easier prices. The sales at the opening were firm at 328 and the downward tendency was inicated by small block sales at 127½ at the close.

Shares of Chicago Railway equipment continue to be active and the buying indicates accumulation in the stock for local interests. The sales at the forenoon session were in blocks of 25, 50 and 100, all at 8.80, with an advance of 10c per share on last sales, with holders demanding 8.85 to 9 for their stock.

Central Coal and Coke held firm and active in fair selling at 64¼ unchanged, and Missouri-Lincoln Trust in good selling was firm at 129½.

Second Session.

There was little trading at the afternoon session. The second preferred stock of the National Candy Co. was bid up from 82 to 82½, but holders held off for a better price. Kansas City Home Telephone stock sold down in small lots from 69 to 68. Commonwealth Trust Co. shares sold at 320, an advance of ½ point over last sales. Laclede Gas 5s sold at 104⅞.

FINANCIAL.

Messrs. George H. Burr & Co., commercial paper brokers, 304-5-9 Security Building, report local money: Indorsed bills receivable, 4 to 6 months, 6 per cent; high-grade and single-name paper, 4 to 6 months, 6 to 6½ per cent; other names, not so well known, 6½ per cent; call money on good security, 6 per cent. Market easier in tone, although demand for money continues good.

Ex-Gov. D. R. Francis, who is en route home from Mexico City, has been delayed and it was stated at his office Monday morning, will reach St. Louis Tuesday night.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. has been called for Monday, Feb. 4. The election of officers of the company will be held a week subsequently.

"Our advertised showing," said an official of the American Central Insurance Co., Monday, "does not fully indicate the condition of the company at this time. It is notable that we have not had a lawsuit arising directly out of the San Francisco disaster. We have not failed to pay every legitimate claim, and on the other hand, our surplus has increased handsomely within the past two months. Under the circumstances it certainly appears as though this company had reason to be proud of its record in 1906."

Call money opened Monday on the New York Stock Exchange at 3 per cent. Continuance of the conditions that brought about the excellent statement of the New York associated banks last Saturday indicate that call and time money rates will be normal in New York for some time.

Local banks show a continued gain of currency from the South and Southwest and there are evidences that the deposit accounts of practically all institutions doing an extensive out-of-town business will show substantial gains in the ensuing week. St. Louis institutions have ceased sending funds to New York and it is believed that if anything is done in the line of exchanges between the two cities, St. Louis may withdraw some of the surplus from the metropolis where interest rates are becoming much easier.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for Monday, $13,536,888; last week, $13,820,664, alances for today, $1,036,615; last week, $1,158,528. Decrease clearings, $243,776; decrease balances, $111,908.

Ex-rights, the shares of National Bank of Commerce, will begin to approximate a figure really indicating the true value of the recent privileges accorded the shareholders in this institution. The policy of the management of the National Bank of Commerce during the past few years has rather been in accordance with the lines followed by leading Eastern institutions, such, for example, as the National City Bank of New York, which has made numerous capital increases, always permitting its shareholders to benefit by reason of the expansion of its financial powers.

John W. Harbou, auditor of St. Joseph County, Mich., has awarded $270,000 3½-per-cent semi-annual 10 2-3 year average bonds to N. W. Harris & Co. for a premium of $3162. The premiums offered by the other bidders follow: S. A. Kean, $1350; E. M. Campbell & Co., Indianapolis, $550.

Application has been made to the New York Stock Exchange by the Mackay Companies to list $50,000,000 preferred stock and $41,380,400 common stock.

The city clerk of Lockhart, Tex., will receive sealed bids until 3 p. m. Feb. 4 for $15,000 5-per-cent public school bonds of the denomination of $500 each. The bonds will mature in 40 years, but as subject to call as follows: $1500 in five years; $2500 in 10 years; $3000 in 15 years; $3500 in 20 years, and $4500 in 25 years. A certified check of $200 is required.

The Controller of the Currency has approved the application to organize the First National Bank of Thornton, Tex.; capital $25,000. B. B. Barrow, J. E. Barrow, J. E. Barrett, W. W. Barnett, J. E. Bradley and others.

STOCKS DECLINE, THEN ADVANCE

From Mid-Forenoon Until 1 O'Clock the Slump Continued and Rail Issues Suffered Most, Losing All the Way From 1 to 4½ Points—Recovery Commenced at 1:30 O'Clock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—With sales of over 1,000,000 shares, the market closed above the day's opening for all of the stocks that made big declines during the middle of the day, the average gain being ½ to 1 point over both bids. This applied to Reading, as well as to Amalgamated Copper. Conclusively the market was shown to be manipulated successfully, as tips were out as soon as the decline commenced, that the market would close high.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Midforenoon another big decline in stocks all over both lists started and by 1 o'clock all of the early opening gains had been wiped out and lower levels reached than were recorded in last Friday and Saturday's finals. A number of prominent stocks came close and at least one recorded new low level since 1904.

The decline was lead by Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Interboro Metropolitan, the preferred stock of the latter making a decline also. Brooklyn dropped down to 74¾ before there was any show of recovery.

Interboro ran down from 36 to 32¾, being ⅞ below the low figure on the New York Stock Exchange for 1906 and also the same amount below the low price of the stock since 1900.

The quotation of 75 for Brooklyn is within 4 points of its low of 71 since 1900.

These declines were made, it is said, on the report that the Southern Railway would float a large loan for three months at 6 per cent, and that the Brooklyn will very soon announce a bond issue.

But while the general decline was in progress the call money market was declining, and was quoted at 2 per cent when the stocks were at their lowest, and most commission houses, therefore, concluded that the street had turned because the recent rally bid brought out more long stock than could be digested, and advised their customers that the market would not advance much until some incident developed to boost it.

Before there were any indications of recovery Union Pacific lost 2⅛, Southern Pacific 12, Reading 4½, Northern Pacific 3½, Great Northern 4½ and St. Paul 1¾. Amalgamated Copper lost a point before the recovery commenced, and then went back to 113½, to opening of the day. Steel common was not lower than 46 during the decline, and on the recovery again registered 47, the day's opening, and ½ above the Saturday last quotations.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The opening of the market Monday was ⅛ to 1 point higher than the finals of last Saturday.

The close of the market in the two last days of last week was unreasonably low and a recovery to something like the figures of the middle of last week is looked for during the early part of this week.

The industrials are included in the morning advances, Amalgamated Copper being up ⅞, Smelter, the Fuels and Steels being also proportionately higher.

The first hour of the market showed only fair trading and prices continued the upturn, hardening a little when the big rail issues had made an average gain of 2 points and the industrials had gained about 1 point.

Steel common held its own, but was not included in the advance of industrials, the leaders among them being Amalgamated and Anaconda Copper, Smelter, American Car and Foundry, Consolidated Gas, Colorado Fuel and Virginia Coal, Iron and Coke, the opening Monday at 90, a gain of 2 points over Saturday's finals and gaining in ¼ point quotations to 94¼, which is a new high record over 93, when the stock came up two months ago.

East St. Louis News

The Illinois State Master Plumbers' convention will open in East St. Louis Tuesday morning and will continue Wednesday and Thursday. Committees of local master plumbers have been appointed to look after the entertainment of the guests during their visit.

Several well-known young ladies will present "The Old Maids' Convention" at Donohue's Hall Monday night under the auspices of Queen City Court, Independent Order of Foresters. A dance and reception will follow the entertainment.

Andrew Hencel of 1110 Exchange avenue, reported to the police Sunday that during the temporary absence of his family a thief entered his home and stole a gold watch and diamond stud.

Albert Lauman of 727 South Sixth street and Miss Margaret Suprunoski will be married Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents, 813 Market avenue, by Rev. J. E. Hall, pastor of the Bond Avenue M. E. Church. They will live at 704 Converse avenue.

Mrs. Kate Bruce has filed a suit against George K. Bruce in the City Court, asking for a divorce. They were married in St. Louis Nov. 1, 1901, and lived together until Dec. 14, 1906.

No more jury cases will be tried in the City Court this term, the jury having been discharged for the term Monday morning. The court was adjourned until Thursday by Deputy Sheriff E. P. Williams, on account of the illness of Judge Moyers, who has been confined to his home for two weeks with pneumonia. It is thought Judge Moyers will be able to hold court Thursday for the purpose of hearing motions for new trials and completing the unfinished work of the term.

The body of John Amelung, 45 years old, who died Sunday at Henrietta Hospital of pneumonia, was taken to St. Louis Monday for burial. He is survived by two brothers.

LIVESTOCK.

RECEIPTS—Today's estimate called for 3500 cattle, 8500 hogs, 1000 sheep and 1000 horses and mules.

CATTLE—About 2000 natives and 1500 Southern cattle were estimated as the day's supply, but up till noon a number of trains had not arrived. The early arrivals were mostly common and medium graded, in both natives and Southern division, and the market ruled fairly active at full, steady prices.

WHEAT PRICES GAIN FRACTION

CASH OFFERINGS LIGHT

Local wheat was very nervous Monday, opening firm, declining fractionally and closing very strong at an advance of ¼@½c for the day. Corn closed ¼c higher and oats closed ⅛@¼c higher for the day.

May wheat opened ⅛@¼c higher at 76⅝c, declined to 76..c, advanced to 76⅞c, closing with offerings at the later price. July wheat opened unchanged at 75⅝c, declined to 75¼c, advanced to 75⅞@76c and closed at 75⅝c bid.

May corn opened ½c lower at 43c and advanced to 43¾c, where it closed. July corn opened ⅜c lower at 43⅝c, went as low as 43½@43⅝c, advanced to 44¼@44⅜c and closed at 44¼c sellers.

Jan. oats was ¼c higher at 36⅞c bid. May oats opened ..c lower at 37½@37⅝c and advanced at the close to 37⅞c bid. July oats opened ¼c lower at 34½c and closed at 35c bid.

The supply statement was delayed.

World's wheat shipments were 7,616,000 bu, against 8,627,000 bu last week and 8,304,000 bu last year. Liverpool wheat closed ¼d higher on the futures and ¼d to ½d higher on the spot wheat. Paris closed ¼c to ½c higher on wheat and unchanged on flour.

Berlin wheat closed ⅜c higher. Antwerp wheat, ⅝c higher and Budapest wheat unchanged for the day.

The local market was very nervous. Opening prices were firm and there was some strength at the start on higher cables and the very light receipts all around. Russian shipments were 500,000 bu less than those of the previous week and this encouraged the buying, but there was some opposition to any advance, and under the considerable offerings, apparently from the outside, prices sagged steadily, reaching a point ⅛@¼c under Saturday's close, and about ½c under the early high point.

In the late trading there was a good tone to the market, some good buying power being aroused by the change in weather conditions throughout the winter wheat belt. Prices advanced steadily late in the session and closed at the day's high point with an advance of ¼@⅜c for the day. There was not much of a demand for cash wheat, but the offerings were very light, and prices strong all along the line. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 90,000 bu.

Corn opened weak and closed strong. Cables were ⅛d to ¼d higher on future corn and unchanged to ¼d higher on spot corn. World's shipments of corn were 3,660,000 bu, against 3,470,000 bu last week and 6,501,000 bu a year ago.

At the opening most of the local traders seemed to be bearish and were selling, prices declining ⅜@½c very quickly. In the lat trading, however, the demand was very good and prices advanced steadily, closing ¼c higher for the day. Cash corn prices were firm, with fair demand and very light offerings. Clearances of corn for the day were 96,000 bu.

There was some little pressure on oats at the start, with prices slightly lower. The offerings, however, which came mostly from the small longs, were soon exhausted and prices recovered, closing ⅛@¼c higher for the day. Cash prices of oats were firm. No oats was cleared from the seaboard today.

CRUSHED IN CAR COLLISION.

Contractor's Leg Broken Twice on Grand Avenue.

Nelson Bruce, aged 43, a bricklaying contractor at 5525 Alaska street is in a serious condition at St. John's Hospital from injuries incurred in a street car collision on Grand avenue, between Osage and Rebecca streets. Fred Fricke, a motorman on one of the cars, was slightly hurt.

The collision happened shortly after 8 p. m. Sunday. Grand avenue car No. 2559, southbound, in charge of A. M. Sigmore, conductor, of 3202 South Compton avenue, and C. J. Ott, motorman, of 3443 Wisconsin avenue, had stopped owing to the derailment of another car ahead of it, and was backing northward when car No. 2555, southbound, in charge of Albert G. Lowe, conductor, of 5503 Putnam street and Fred Fricke, motorman, of 3236 Itaska street crashed into it.

Three passengers on the front platform of the car running south jumped. The motorman, Fricke, who also jumped, was hurt by falling in the street. Michael O'Malley, son of Police Captain O'Malley of 4655 Wagoner place jumped from the rear platform.

Bruce, who was badly hurt, was inside the car in a seat in front of the stove. He was caught in the wreck of the front part of the car and his left leg was broken in two places below the knee. The stove turned over in the aisle but the car did not take fire.

Bruce was removed from the debris and attended by Dr. W. Ude of 3131 South Grand avenue.

UNHURT IN EARTHQUAKE.

Mrs. Higbee of St. Louis Returning From Jamaica.

News has been received of the safe arrival in Philadelphia of a St. Louis woman who was in Kingston, Jamaica, at the time of the earthquake, Jan. 14. Mrs. R. B. Higbee of 4503 McPherson avenue, who was in Kingston with her sister, Mrs. B. G. Chapman, and her nephew, B. G. Chapman Jr. of Detroit, were among the refugees from the island on board the steamship Admiral Farragut, which arrived in port at Philadelphia at noon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Z. Smith of 83 Vandeventer place and Dexter Tiffany of 72 Vandeventer place, who sailed on the same steamship for Jamaica, arrived at Port Antonio, on the other side of the island from Kingston, five hours after the earthquake last Monday. After learning of the disaster they remained on board the steamship and returned on it to Philadelphia. Mr. Tiffany said he saw the earth heave and billow and noticed a peculiar haze, like a cloud of fine dust from a volcanic eruption, hanging over the island.

The hotel at which Mrs. Higbee and party stopped in Kingston was unroofed and wrecked by the earthquake, according to press dispatches. It is about seven miles from town. Mrs. Higbee arrived in Jamaica Jan. 11 and had expected to remain there about two weeks. Mrs. Chapman and her son formerly resided in St. Louis. The first news of the safety of the party came in a telegram to Mrs. Higbee's husband. He had planned to go to New York Monday if no news had come from Mrs. Higbee, and probably would have sailed for Jamaica.

Rain Ruining Corn Crop.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Jan. 21.—Mississippi County is confronted with a condition which may result in stagnation of business, if not absolute distress. The rainfall of last autumn rendered it impossible for farmers to harvest all of the corn crop standing in the fields and only about one-third of the total was gathered. When time came for the corn to be shelled, the owners found it to be sprouting in the pens, utterly ruined. The corn which still stands in the fields is becoming more damaged by rain each day.

DRAWBAR RIDING BEATS STRAPHANGING; TRY IT ON BELLEFONTAINE LINE

Necessity Converts Iron Rod Behind Car Into Seat for Rush Hours.

RIDERS BECOME SKILLFUL

Some Have Learned to Balance on Bar and Leave Both Hands Free.

COMPANY NEGLECTS LINE

Long Through Division Not Given Half Enough Cars at Any Time.

Of all the trolleys in the land
There is none so jammed as Beggs's
He is the darling of our
Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha heart
And he lives upon our legses.

The Bellefontaine line of the United Railways system is the great connecting link between North and South St. Louis, and its route is so laid out that in running from one extreme end of the city to the other it also passes through the downtown district.

In this way it serves the purpose of an east-and-west as well as a north-and-south line, and its traffic is very great.

From Bellefontaine and Calvary cemeteries the cars of this line run to Frimm street in Carondelet and pass through the business district between Morgan street and Pine street, running south on Seventh street and north on Eighth street in making this downtown loop.

Passengers on the line say the cars are the worst in St. Louis and that there are not enough of them to accommodate the crowds, especially in the morning and evening rush.

The line is the only one which many dwellers in the congested residence districts of North and South St. Louis can use to reach their places of employment without having to transfer.

Observations made by Post-Dispatch reporters on the Bellefontaine division show that the cars are not closely spaced, even during the busy hours, and that they are invariably jammed to their capacity.

This word capacity, applied to St. Louis street cars, means the number of persons a car will carry without putting any of the passengers on the roof.

Drawbar Passengers.

On the Bellefontaine line many passengers nightly ride home standing on a narrow ledge which juts out from the platform, BEHIND THE REAR DASHBOARD.

As to the car, these passengers are NOT IN IT, but the conductors are careful to collect their fares just the same.

The most desirable place to ride behind the car is on the coupling bar, which extends out further than the uncertain foothold of the narrow ledge. There is always a rush for this place of vantage. The drawbar swings from side to side when the car goes around a curve, but with practice the passenger can learn to hold on, and the swaying adds life and motion to his ride.

This sort of riding is becoming a fad with passengers who are compelled by circumstances to take Bellefontaine cars at points where there is no hope of getting seats or platform room.

Drawbar riders are treated with more consideration than straphangers. They are not pushed about and jostled by the conductor as he makes his round collecting fares. If one of them, striving to keep his balance, so far forgets himself as to grab the cord and pull the trolley off the wire the conductor doesn't get angry about it.

He just sings out cheerily: "Put it on again, old man," and waits while the drawbar rider tugs at the rope. If it is necessary for the passenger to step from the drawbar to the street to put the trolley back, the conductor sees that no other person takes his place on the drawbar. If the drawbar rider slips off swinging around a curve, the car stops and waits for him to pick himself up and clamber on again.

Comedian of Rush Hour.

The drawbar passenger usually has a rich vein of humor. He is the life of the jolly little platform parties which the United Railway gives for its passengers morning and evening.

The sound of his merry voice as he sings out to the conductor: "Stop the car, I want to roll a cigarette," brings a ray of brightness into the crowded lives of the other passengers.

When a drawbar rider is new at the game, he has to hold on to the dashboard with both hands. This makes it necessary for the conductor to stop the car, run around behind it and take the nickel out of the passenger's pocket. With practice a person of some natural pose can learn to balance on the drawbar without holding on at all. This is regarded as fine training for those who think of taking up skyscraper building as a steady employment.

Monday morning car 2113 of the Bellefontaine line, northbound, reached Jefferson avenue with 42 passengers seated and 43 standing. At Seventh and Olive streets the registers showed 91 cash fares and 12 transfers.

Car 2123, which followed close behind, was equally crowded. The Bellefontaine cars carried less than their usual number of passengers on this trip Monday morning, because wire trouble caused them to be diverted over the Tower Grove line at Jefferson avenue.

Dirty Cars Whiz By.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

While the people are discussing the car service, what about the Tower Grove line? It has some of the dirtiest cars in the city, and they are so few in number that a passenger has to wait from fifteen to twenty minutes for a car, and then they pass you by. Cars are so filthy and the windows are so dirty that they have to be wiped off before you can see out of them. The name ought to be changed from the T. G. to the N. G.

ARTICLE NO. 6

OF SERIES designed to show the exact conditions which prevail on St. Louis street car lines, all of which are owned by the United Railways Co.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS ARTICLES.

Last Tuesday it was shown that the cars of the Hodiamont line, formerly the Suburban, though the largest in the city and run on short space, are overcrowded and that hundreds of passengers are delayed in reaching their destinations morning and evening.

It was shown in Wednesday's article that the Olive line, where the accommodations are the best in the city, is inadequate to meet the traffic demands made upon its three divisions.

The third article, published Thursday, demonstrated that three cars a minute are too few for the passengers on the Broadway line, the city's great north and south artery.

The following article had to do with the overcrowded Page line, which has borne the burden of Washington avenue traffic since the Delmar line was diverted to Olive street.

Saturday's article, the fifth in the series told how inconvenience, with an added element of danger, has followed the changing of the route of the Manchester line, formerly the Maplewood division of the Suburban. The line, as no wrun, intersects a dangerous grade crossing at Vandeventer avenue.

CAR COMPLAINT UNHEEDED.

Tenth Ward Association Sent McCulloch Vain Protest.

Municipal ownership of street railways and other public utilities as a means of obtaining better and cheaper service was approved by the Tenth Ward Improvement Association at its monthly meeting Sunday at Broadway and Chippewa street. The association declined to indorse the proposed road through the south part of the city by the Central Suburban Traction Co., which offers to give a 3-cent fare.

The United Railways Co. and Manager McCulloch were strongly criticised for the car service in South St. Louis. The secretary of the association said he had written to the company complaining of dirty, rickety cars, and that the complaint had not been heeded in the least.

The Executive Committee will also take action relative to pool halls, members of the association proposing to present a bill to the Legislature prohibiting minors from entering such places.

The three-platoon police bill, now pending, was objected to as calling for increased taxation to the amount of $400,000 to support the proposed additions to the force. The matter was referred to the Affiliated Business Men's Association.
